Climbing Missionaries Glad To Be Home

Passing the Buck System

Truman Accuses Eisenhower Of Endangering World Peace

His Popularity All That Matters

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harry S. Truman accused President Eisenhower Friday night of "passing the buck" to subordinates in order to maintain his own popularity—even at the risk of starting a third world war.

The former president made the charge in a frequently applauded speech to the American Political Science Association.

Departing from his prepared text, and referring several times specifically to Eisenhower, Truman said the White House has adopted "the old army game of passing the buck." Recalling that when he was president a sign on his desk read: "The buck stops here," Truman said that today "on that same desk I think the buck starts there."

The audience of about 500 applauded this and many other Truman sallies at the administration. It gave the ex-president a standing ovation before and after his address.

In his prepared text, Truman although not mentioning the president by name had by implication accused Eisenhower of shirking the responsibilities of his office and perhaps endangering national welfare, for the sake of maintaining personal popularity.

Truman's talk had been billed in advance as "non-political."

Truman said, however, that the Republican administration seems to have moved the government from Washington to the advertising agencies of New York's Madison Avenue. And he said it has put forward a new doctrine that the president's aides, and not the president himself, are responsible for White House actions.

The former president said the real job of a leader is to lead and "it is more important to promote the welfare of the country than it is to preserve one's personal popularity by avoiding a controversy."

He said "the most dreadful consequences" of "the Madison Avenue technique" have come in foreign affairs, and he described Eisenhower's meeting with the leaders of Soviet Russia at Geneva last year as the worst example of a "selling campaign."

In harmless mirth and fun.
Let friendship reign, be just and kind
And evil speak of none."

Suez: What Next?

LONDON (UP)—Britain is consulting with the United States, France and other "interested" nations on what to do next in the Suez canal crisis, diplomatic sources disclosed yesterday.

Informants said possible steps, including use of the British expeditionary force being built up in the Mediterranean, would hinge on the report next week by Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, chairman of the five-nation committee which went to negotiate in Cairo with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

It was disclosed that Britain has drawn up several alternative proposals for guaranteeing international control of the Suez canal.

The sources said these "next step" proposals had been under discussion with France and the United States and probably are being expanded to include other nations interested in the canal.

Kidnapped, Murdered

Grief-Mad Father Won't Identify Tot

HAMDEN, Conn. (UP)—The distraught father of kidnapped Cynthia Ruotolo, who already has lost two children in tragic deaths, refused yesterday to identify his daughter's body and said he would not attend her funeral.

The mother, Mrs. Eleanor Ruotolo, went through tortuous hours of questioning, but police said they believed the baby was kidnapped.

"As of now we're proceeding on the theory of kidnap and murder," said state's attorney Abraham S. Ullman.

Ullman said that the father, Stephen Ruotolo, "Doesn't want to make any identification."

Ullman said that six-week-old Cynthia's mother, Mrs. Eleanor Ruotolo, already has made positive indentification.

"Other members of the family have pointed out the unreasonableness of the situation and have argued with him," Ullman said. But Ruotolo will not even look at the body of his daughter, whose body was found yesterday sealed in a plastic potato sack and floating in a lake one mile from the store where she was taken from her mother.

County Coroner James J. Corrigan said he talked to Ruotolo and pointed out that the baby had been in the water several days. But Corrigan said he refused to look at the body, saying it was "too distended."

Two years ago the Ruotolos lost one of their children in a nursery accident. Another child died earlier of pneumonia.

Funeral director Frank Bisler said Ruotolo gave him information for the death certificate, but that the grief-stricken father said with bewilderment, "I don't think it's my baby."

Germans Plead For Unity

BONN (AP) — West Germany made a direct appeal to the Soviet Union Friday to join the West in a new campaign to reunite this divided country. Russia was reported to have quickly turned down the new proposal.

No Other Party Has Plans—Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner said Friday night that to claim its heritage B.C. must have a government with an aggressive policy for development of the interior of the province.

Social Credit appreciates the problems that must be faced here in the next 20 years, he told a Vancouver Centre Social Credit rally.

"No other party in this political campaign has any plans that extend beyond Sept. 19," he said. "They have no plans because on that date their efforts will stop."

The Social Crediters planned to spend "at least $1,000,000,000" in the next decade on bridges and roads alone. It had in hand "one of the most important pioneering steps" in the opening up of the interior—extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway beyond Fort St. John.

"You can choose the carping critics of the opposition and let them throw what sand they possess into the gears of progress," he said. "Or you can give another mandate to the government that gets things done."

Balloon Rises 27 Miles Right Out of This World

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UP) — A pyramid-shaped plastic balloon built by the University of Minnesota soared more than 27 miles into space yesterday, a new world record.

The helium-filled balloon reached an altitude of 143,000 feet where it leveled off. Scientists expected the balloon to burst when the last ballast was dropped, however, it hovered at the peak altitude, dropped slightly and then drifted back to 143,000 feet.

Late last night the balloon was 100 miles west of the twin cities and travelling west at a fairly rapid rate. A university spokesman, Professor F. Ney, said it was now possible that the balloon would stay up overnight.

PRESSURE SLIGHT

"This balloon is essentially out of the earth's atmosphere," Ney said." It is in such rarified atmosphere that the pressure is only one five-hundredths of what it is on earth."

The old record of 120,000 feet was set here last summer.

The balloon, which was launched yesterday morning, weighs about 110 pounds and was carrying 48 pounds of cosmic ray research and meterological equipment, two cameras recording the entire flight and two radio transmitters.

"When the balloon bursts, it will take more than an hour before the equipment falls to earth," Ney said.

"With this new balloon," he added, "we hope to measure all of the iron nucli in cosmic rays."

"It will also aid in learning how the universe is formed and how it is changing.

Grounds Three Times

Freighter Really Lost

Where She Wasn't

Grounding of the Liberian-registered vessel Seagate off the Washington coast took an amazing turn yesterday when it was learned the ship ran aground three times. Ship's officers had no clear idea of their position.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to pull the Vancouver-bound freighter off Sonora reef four miles north of Point Grenville and 90 miles south of Victoria.

The Seagate was first heard from Thursday morning when she radioed the Victoria pilot station that she was standing off Brotchie ledge awaiting a pilot.

Station officials looked to sea and radioed back that the ship was nowhere near the ledge.

Later in the day the Seagate reported she was aground on Race Rocks.

The Island Commander, owned by Island Tug and Barge Co. Ltd., and a United States Coast Guard plane rushed to the rescue but could find no sign of the ship.

When a Loran station near the actual grounding reported a ship on Sonora reef, the coast guard sent several vessels to her aid.

John H. Leslie, of Tahola, Wash., said the Seagate went aground three times.

"I saw her first coming slowly down the coast in the fog. I guess he couldn't see very well, because he sheered off and put his bow aground.

"The skipper pulled her off, headed north, then hung her up on a reef. He was stuck there for half an hour, got off and then headed south.

"About six miles away he hit the rocks again and she's still there."

Capt. Comonis Tanayotis and his radio operator were able to maintain radio communication by using a battery-powered set.

The Island Commander and the Erik Foss of Seattle finally reached the Seagate's side about 4 p.m. yesterday, and made an unsuccesful attempt to free the freighter.

A second attempt was to be made at 2 a.m. today and if this proves unsuccessful another attempt will be made at 2.30 p.m.

The coast guard said the ship is leaking in two holds and has water in the engine room.

The vessel is also cracked and buckling amidships.

Don Elworthy, of Island Tug and Barge, said it is not certain the Seagate will float if dragged off the rock, but if left there, it will break up in a moderate swell.

Coast guard vessels have removed 17 men from the ship, but 11 remain huddled on deck ready to help in the salvage attempt.

Time Stands Still

Lost Dog Returns After Three Years

MORRIS, Ill. (UP)—Zipper, a springer spaniel missing for three years, has come home.

Zipper showed up this week at the home of David Wharrie after disappearing in June, 1953. He bounded up on the back porch as if he had just been out in the yard a few minutes.

Zipper was glad to be home. He jumped all over Wharrie's 14-year-old daughter, Barbara, and licked her face.

Barbara was in 5th grade when Zipper disappeared. Now she's a freshman in high school.

Zipper himself hasn't changed much, but he was wearing a different collar.

"We haven't the faintest idea where's he's been," said Wharrie, an electrician. "We advertised for him and turned the whole town upside down when he disappeared.

"Anybody who ever lost a dog knows pretty much how happy we are now that he's back."

Pony Saw the Light, Slowed Down And 1,000 Miners Are on Strike

BLYTH, England (Reuters)—Nearly 1,000 miners at a mine near here were on strike Friday—because a pit-pony named Jet will not work hard enough.

The men are paid on results, and they claim that the squad which has the bad luck to get Jet loses money because he moves the tubs of coal from the coal-face so slowly.

Jet's "go - slow" dates back to last month—when he was brought to the surface and saw the sunshine.

Since then the men have been pleading with him to work harder, and finally they threatened him with sticks, but without success.

They have also asked the national coal board to get rid of the pony but all that happens, they say, is that Jet is transferred to another part of the pit.

The men say they will not start work again until Jet is replaced.

Journey to B.C. Mecca

Tribe of Orrah Quits Wilderness

Ontario 'Too Crowded'

WINNIPEG (CP)—A family of trappers from the Ontario wilderness passed through Winnipeg yesterday, without a glance at civilization, on its way to new hunting grounds in British Columbia.

A patriarch in the Biblical tradition, 57-year-old Orrah Kielczewski herded his wife and seven children through Union Station from the Fort Frances, Ont., train to a day coach which would carry them to Prince Rupert, B.C.

For most of the children, it was the first time they had been on a train. Even 25-year-old Orrah Jr. blushed and stammered when a reporter asked his name.

"They aren't used to meeting strangers," Mr. Kielczewski said. "They lived with us all their lives. None of them ever been to school, except by mail."

Twenty-eight years ago Orrah brought his bride, by dog team from northern Manitoba to settle in the Rainy Lake wilderness, 60 miles east of Fort Frances.

Living in a houseboat on Pipestone river, they trapped animals for a living and raised eight children, ranging today from 26-year-old Wess to four-year-old Billy.

"For years we've hankered for new territory," said Orrah. "We needed new trapping grounds. It was getting sort of crowded in Ontario."

When they left home, their nearest neighbor was a mere 10 miles away.

Last year, Orrah boarded a train, his first trip in 30 years, and went prospecting for new territory. He found what he wanted near Prince Rupert.

Changing trains with the family in Winnipeg yesterday were three baggage cars loaded with dogs, descendants of the original "honeymoon" team, 47-foot homemade steamboat and household goods. Freight bill for the 1,800-mile trip will amount to $3,200.

"We don't have any idea where we're going to stay in British Columbia," said Orrah, "but we got a tent. We're not worrying."

Mrs. Kielczewski, a small, quiet woman, is expecting a baby within two months.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

While G. E. Mortimore is on holiday, some of his columns are being repeated in this space.

Repeated from Aug. 20, 1955

A GIRL spelling champion won a pile of money on television when she threw down the word "antidisestablishmentarianism" and pinned it to the mat.

Why should she be so richly rewarded for beating a big fat word that never did a day's work in its life? That was the first thought that occurred to me.

"Antidisestablishmentarianism" was obviously a pampered King Farouk sort of a word that spent all its time lolling around in a big padded dictionary, with a harem of beautiful young words like "antihypnotic," "antibiotic" and "anticipation" dancing attendance on it.

Never having taken any exercise, even so much as a brief run through the pages of an intellectual bi-monthly, a word like that should be an easy mark.

* * *

However, I asked around and learned that William E. Gladstone did indeed give the word a short run. He was referring to the relationship between church and state—which is what the word is all about, in case anyone wants to know.

An established church is a state church. An establishmentarian is a person who favors a state church. A disestablishmentarian is a person who wants to knock the props from under a state church, and an antidisestablishmentarian is someone who wants to stop that kind of destruction.

The word Gladstone used was "antidisestablishmentarian," which some of you may recognize as our word when it was younger. I don't know exactly what Gladstone made it do, but apparently he took it out for a brief spell of roadwork.

Leading a sedentary life ever since, our word has added a whole extra syllable to its rear section.

Lately it was dragged, puffing and protesting, into a television studio, where a schoolgirl made short work of it.

* * *

You would think that after that defeat the poor flabby old word would be allowed to return to the dictionary or perhaps sent into exile.

Instead, some cruel desk man on a newspaper squeezed the word into a headline, to describe the trouble Peron is meeting in his sordid attempts to destroy the Catholic Church in Argentina.

The desk man was perfectly within his rights in sending the word to work, but it didn't seem fair, somehow. Seeing that word in the healline reminded me of a stout, wheezy old executive being forced to swing a pick and shovel again.

That girl spelling champion still has another bout ahead. Next time, I hope they match her against some lean, savage words like "rhythm," "schism," "parenthesis" and "battalion."

Garden Notes

Grand Season For Tomatoes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

This has been a grand season for outdoor tomatoes, and in most gardens, the tomato plants are heavily laden with fruits. It is the end of the season, however, which provides the real test of a good gardener. Anyone can get ripe fruits from the lower trusses — the real trick is to swell and ripen the recently-formed upper trusses of bloom.

The first job is to behead the plants. Select one of the upper trusses on which the fruits have already set, even if quite small, and cut off the top of the plant two leaves above this selected truss. It is quite an important point to allow a bit of foliage to remain on the plant up above the last bunch of tomatoes. If this is not done, they haven't a chance of ripening.

NIP SIDESHOOTS

With the staking varieties of tomatoes, it has been the practice so far through the season to nip off every sideshoot as it forms, and this is quite correct. From now on, though, a change of technique is necessary.

From here on in, we are liable to get some sudden and heavy rainstorms, and this abrupt drenching imposes an unusual strain on your tomato plants when their foliage is limited. You see, when the moisture is taken up by the roots, there is nowhere for it to go. There aren't enough leaves to care for the added volume of water.

Under these conditions, the moisture is carried to the fruits. The developing tomatoes swell faster than they can make flesh, and the result is split and spoiled fruits.

It is good practice, therefore, to allow three or four sideshoots to remain, simply to use up any surplus water and prevent the tomatoes from splitting. This keeps the growth active and in balance, and gives you at least a sporting chance of finishing off that last upper truss of fruits.

MISTAKEN IDEAS

I see a lot of tomato plants around town where nearly all the leaves have been stripped off, and there is hardly anything left except naked stems with trusses of ripening fruit. I suppose the owners are trying to expose the fruit to the sun, or perhaps they have some ideas of taking off the leaves to "throw all the growth into the tomatoes." Both these ideas are mistaken ones.

All the complex materials which go to make up a ripe tomato are manufactured within the tissues of the leaves, through the action of sunlight on them. Consequently, if you don't have any leaves, you don't have any tomatoes.

Nor does a tomato fruit need any sun to ripen. As long as the leaves get plenty of direct sunshine, the fruits will ripen perfectly even in dense shade. Not only that, but they will have better flavor and more tender skins. Don't take off any leaves except obviously diseased or damaged ones, or those interfering with the free circulation of air through the foliage.

Climbers Return Amazed by Fuss

Victoria's two mountaineering missionaries are grounded. Still bewildered by the two-nation uproar they had caused, they were safely back in their homes here last night.

Rev. Earl Johnson, 27, a west coast missionary and his 21-year-old student-missionary companion, Don Richardson, were fined $25 yesterday after violating Mt. Rainier National park regulations Wednesday when they attempted to scale the 14,000-foot snow-capped mountain.

After Labor Day, permission to climb the mountain must be obtained from park authorities, something the two churchmen failed to secure.

Their distress signals were seen Wednesday night on the 13,000-foot Kautz glacier. Search parties went into action and the men were brought down to safety early yesterday.

Sitting at his home at 819 Hillside, Mr. Johnson said neither Mr. Richardson nor himself had any knowledge of the regulations, although Mr. Richardson has had climbing experience since he was 15.

"There was nothing wilful in our action, at all," he said. "We just had a few days holiday and decided—almost on the spur of the moment—to climb Mt. Rainier.

"The story seems to have got around that we had a clothe-line with us. That's not really true. Actually, it was a half-inch climbing rope. What do they think? That we were going to hang diapers on Mt. Rainier?"

Spending the evening at the Johnson Hillside avenue home, Richardson declared that "all in all it was a pretty enjoyable climb."

"The worst part of the climb was the cold," said Mr. Richardson. "Throughout the night we hugged each other and did exercises to keep warm. We had sleeping bags with us, but they were too thin."

Both men admitted it was the highest they had ever climbed. "I've been as high as 12,000 feet before," said Mr. Richardson, "but troubles don't seem to begin till you pass that point."

Johnson is leaving Victoria tomorrow.

After a short holiday on the mainland with his 24-year-old wife Lucy, he will return with her to his mercy work on the west coast.

His ship, Messenger III, operated by the Shantymen's Christian Association, is well known to residents of the remote coastal settlements.

Later last night Mr. Richardson returned to his aunt's home at 2923 Dysart, with nothing more than chapped lips to remind him of his cold night on the rugged mountain.

Mr. Johnson firmly resolved: "In future I keep my legs at sealevel. I'm sticking to boats from now on . . . it's safer there."

Mayor Hears Plan

Hotel May Occupy Site of City Hall

A group interested in building a $1,500,000 hotel and parking garage may push Victoria, or Victoria and Saanich, into a new city hall sooner than anticipated.

Representatives of the group told Mayor Percy Scurrah yesterday they would make an offer on the present city hall, so that the whole city hall block could be used as a site for a 275-car garage connected with a 100-room hotel, with shops on the ground floor.

They spoke at first of the city vacating the property in six months, Mayor Scurrah said, but he told them such quick action would be impossible.

"Then they talked about a year."

SPOKESMAN

Spokesman was A. M. Arnold, Vancouver, general manager of Mechanipark Systems of Edmonton. A local real estate man is believed to be representing principals behind the proposed hotel.

The mayor said they had indicated that the city hall property was their first choice.

The city unsuccessfully advertised for sale earlier this year the city hall, fire hall, market building and police station.

Victoria and Saanich have a committee looking into the feasibility of having a joint municipal hall, and the mayor said that before recommending a joint hall, "we will want estimates of cost, a decision on location, and a very clear picture of how it would be financed."

Earlier in the day, Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich said it was "reasonable to expect that things will be far enough advanced to have a referendum on the matter this December," but Mayor Scurrah had indicated that more study would be required.

Health Board Report Ready for Oak Bay

First reports on possible expansion of the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health will be presented at a meeting of board and Oak Bay officials Tuesday.

Coun. Fred Hawes, Oak Bay representative, will receive figures requested by Reeve Fred Norris.

Board chairman Coun. G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt, pointed out that under amalgamation Oak Bay would be entitled to receive a provincial grant of "around $5,500 to $6,000."

"The cost to Oak Bay will be very small and they will not lose any autonomy in any way," he said.

Report was drawn up by a committee consisting of Drs. G. F. Amyot, Elizabeth Mahaffey and A. N. Beattie, city manager Cecil Wyatt and city solicitor T. P. O'Grady.

The committee was also given the task of studying merger with Saanich but, said the chairman, "at this time, we are going to concentrate on possible union with Oak Bay."

Strikers, Garagemen Fail To Reach Pact

Striking automotive maintenance workers' union leaders and representatives of 10 major Victoria garages, failed to reach agreement in a meeting yesterday.

However, a second meeting is to be held as soon as it can be arranged, E. E. Pearlman, spokesman for the Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association, said.

Neither party in the dispute would comment on progress made in the talks.

Union pickets began walking lines at five Victoria garages Wednesday, extending the strike to four other shops and placing an information picket on a non-striking shop Thursday.

Early yesterday, pickets were sent to National No. 2, a service station owned by National Motors, one of the strike-bound garages.

Proprietor John Hawthorne objected on grounds that his employees were better paid and working shorter hours than outlined in union demands, although they are unorganized.

Mr. Hawthorne explained to the union that he hires his own men, sets their hours and wages. The union agreed to withdraw the pickets and offered to recommend the service station to persons who refused to cross picket lines at the struck garages.

Building Delays School Opening

Brentwood elementary school, scheduled to reopen Monday, will not open its doors to pupils until Thursday. Officials said the delay is necessary to allow completion of the new addition to the school.

Ugly Mob Bars Another School

Negroes Turned Away, Newsmen Driven Off

STURGIS, Ky. (AP)—An ugly tempered mob turned Negro students back from another school Friday as Kentucky's flare-up of violence over school integration spread to a second community. More national guardsmen were called up to meet the mounting crisis.

A mob in Clay, 11 miles from Sturgis, turned back a car bringing two elementary grade Negro students to the Clay school. Later, the same mob drove a group of newspaper men from the town and sent motorcycle riders along with their cars to see that they left.

Sturgis, where the racial trouble erupted Tuesday, was relatively quiet. National Guard tanks and troops were strategically located in the tense city.

It was in Sturgis Thursday that troops with bayonets fixed drove a path through a howling, jeering mob for nine Negro students. The students failed to show up Friday but they said they planned to be there Monday.

An estimated 500 guardsmen from Bowling Green and Russellville area were being summoned to their units. They will be taken to Camp Brekinridge, near Sturgis, to stand by for any trouble Monday.

Spokesmen for the crowd—many of them women—said they were armed but none of the reporters entering the small community saw weapons of any type among the group.

Mob pressure also blocked efforts of three Negroes to register at the Texarkana Tex. junior college.

Island Fire Checked

More than 300 fire-fighters controlled the Mount Wymper forest blaze yesterday.

Closure went into effect in the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island, at midnight.

Work in the woods is restricted to early morning shift, starting at 2 a.m. All recreation in the forest area, except in provincial parks, is banned by the closure.

There have been 1,400 fires in the Vancouver district, which includes the island, since May 1.

Total fires during the same period throughout the province amount to 2,592, costing taxpayers an estimated $440,915 to control.

Forest lands affected by the latest closure order on Vancouver Island are all those south of the line from the Nahmint river on the Alberni canal and Suquash on the eastern side of the island.

Up-Islanders Admit Careless Driving Charges

Two up-Island persons pleaded guilty in city police court yesterday to careless driving charges.

Marvin P. Nordstrom, Lake Cowichan, and Vera M. Dalzell, Crofton, admitted being involved in separate accidents here. Both were fined $35 and their licences suspended.

Douglas Herbert Going, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to support his wife and two children and was remanded to Monday for sentence.

Mrs. Going told the court he had ceased to provide for her in June of 1955 and she hadn't seen him since.

A charge of vagrancy was withdrawn and the more serious one of contributing to juvenile delinquency laid against two young Vancouver men. Magistrate Hall was informed.

Ronald Hugh Smith, 20, and Frederick Eugene Van Brunt, 24, will appear in juvenile court.

A rash of speeders—eight of them—were fined in Colwood RCMP court.

The speeders and their fines were: Thomas O. Collins, 19, Saanich road, $10; William J. Olsen, 23, HMCS Crescent, $20; Robert Belobaba, 19, 1448 Grant, $20; Bernard R. Kehn, 23, 376 Cook, $25; John J. Coates, 36, 1233 Haultain, $25; Ajaib Singh, 2650 Prior, $20; Malcolm M. More, 58, 1231 Pandora, $15 and John W. Carr, 20, 2812 Inlet avenue, $25. Each paid $3 costs.

In Oak Bay police court, Bennie A. Irving, Youbou, was fined $35 and his licence suspended for three months for careless driving.

Squeezed Out of the Market

DEVELOPMENTS in the shipbuilding and ship operating industries of the world are causing an increasingly serious situation for those countries where costs of material and labor are higher than shipping line owners are willing to pay. The nation to profit most from the search for low-cost construction is Japan, now ranking second only to Great Britain in tonnages of new ships on the ways. It is significant that the world's largest tanker, the 84,730-ton Universe Leader, was built in Japan though she will carry oil on the Iran-America run.

Japan at present has 840,000 gross tons of shipbuilding in hand, plus a backlog of orders running to more than 3,500,000 tons and worth nearly $1,000,000,000 to the builders. During the first quarter of this year Japanese yards launched, in export tonnage alone, 37 per cent of the world's total of new ships. With present orders Japan can look forward to several years of surging activity, and the outlook for the nation's industry is improving all the time, while that of other shipbuilding countries becomes correspondingly darker.

To a minor degree Canada has some share in this Japanese boom. Mr. John E. Lancaster, Canadian trade commissioner at Kobe, writes in a publication of the Dominion government that much of the work of Japanese yards is to the specifications and under the supervision of Canadian naval architects. Although Canada has been practically forced out of the picture as a competitor in the international shipbuilding business, he says, some Canadian firms can and do sell materials and component parts to Japanese builders, and there is room for other Canadian companies in this field.

There is some slight encouragement for Canadian industry in this; but purveying experts and materials to foreign yards is a far cry from the status of a major world shipbuilding nation for which wartime construction appeared to be preparing Canada. Because of high costs all round there is nothing much left for Canada's well-equipped and experienced yards but repair work, conversions and naval construction thrown their way to save them from extinction and the country itself from the serious position that could create in the event of another emergency.

Nor is shipbuilding the only Canadian industry to feel the pinch of prohibitive costs, as the Dominion's current trade deficit of nearly $1,000,000,000 makes abundantly plain.

Legal Advice

A NEW Brunswick counsel has been telling junior members of the Canadian Bar Association that all citizens, rich or poor, have a right to legal advice when it is required and that the latter are entitled to expect lawyers to provide this service. This is rather a blanket avowal. As well say perhaps that needy people have a right to expect doctors to heal their wounds, plumbers fix their leaking pipes and taxi-drivers provide transportation—all gratis and for nothing.

Yet as with medicine the case of the poverty-stricken unable to afford legal help falls into a special category. Few would support the thesis that lack of means should prevent anyone in distress from having the full protection of the law, and this such a person does not have if he or she is without the financial means to consult a lawyer. Legal advice, like medical advice—in connection with which the same argument applies—is something that may affect the fundamental well-being of any individual. There is valid claim therefore for some agency to which the afflicted may turn.

This situation was cited as an opportunity that young lawyers should not miss and as a challenge to the best that was in them. It is not likely to go by default. Probably to a degree larger than appreciated the legal profession has not hesitated to give freely of its technical knowledge. Young lawyers particularly handle many cases without expectation of fee. Undoubtedly this is a method of gaining experience when briefs are few and far between and maturity and a large practice may change the sentiment, but they do so to the best of their ability and therefore in the best interests of their clients, notwithstanding that the latter may be unable to pay for their services. In British Columbia in fact the Bar Association maintains a free legal service for such contingencies.

The new Brunswick counsel, however, was pointing his remarks as a warning. He feared that if lawyers did not provide legal advice for the needy the state would. There would be nothing terrible in such a happening, nor is it easy to see how the independence of lawyers would thereby be threatened as he mentioned. As far as one can learn such a system in Britain, cited as a bad example, has not undermined the jurisprudence of that land. For one thing legal advice provided at the expense of the state would ensure that lawyers would get paid for their services. There should be no objection to that. As matters stand, also, governments appoint counsel to act as prosecutors at assizes and employ them in other ways without detriment to their independence.

The Speakership

WITH a record of "firsts" in not a few directions, perhaps the day will come when British Columbia will work towards and adopt a permanent ex-party Speaker for future legislative assemblies. It could easily be done. A bright young graduate of the UBC law school, given a few years' training under the Law Clerk in the Legislature and made conversant with the framing of laws and standing rules of the House, would become promising material for an initial appointment. That should be for life, subject to due performance, and predicated on open election at the ballot box, to a seat in some multiple constituency which would not thereby be deprived of effectual representation.

Three Full Slates

COMMENTING on the reported but unofficial figures for nominations in British Columbia the other day unwittingly we did injustice to the CCF, which filed four nominations near the deadline for a total of 51 candidates. This brought the party's representation up to the status of a full slate, because for years the CCF has left the Fernie seat uncontested in favor of a veteran legislator, Mr. Tom Uphill. The completed nominations to recapitulate were: Socreds, 52; Liberals, 52; CCF, 51; Progressive Conservatives, 21; LPP, 14; Independents, 8; and Labor Independent, 1.

Interpreting the News

Power—Without Experience

By EDWARD M. WAKIN

North American Newspaper Alliance

CAIRO—The impatient breed of Egyptians who have come to power under President Nasser are in danger of bungling the country's new responsibilities and pretensions.

That's the view of many Westerners who have worked closely with Egyptians in private industry, Point Four operations, and government projects.

Below the level of the small inner circle surrounding Nasser, Egypt's fortunes and policies are in the hands of the expanding middle class—government workers and young army officers who have suddenly been given tremendous powers.

Added to these are the new technicians and specialists of the country, like those in charge of the Suez canal operations since Egyptian nationalization.

* * *

It is generally agreed these newly emerged secondary leaders and experts are too impatient, too hasty in their desire "to run the show." For example, Egyptians rushed into jobs as Suez canal pilots are proving to be only partly trained and not yet fully competent.

One critical Briton who had long contact with the Egyptians in the canal area described them this way:

"You must remember that these Egyptians have quite a feeling of inferiority. For years they have been talked down to and looked down upon. Now they are looking for every chance to show they are in charge. This means they won't always do the wisest thing, just so long as they play up to a role of power."

The curious mixture of inferiority feelings and pride is characteristic of the Egyptians in the minds of Westerners. Invariably, Egyptians exaggerate their know-how, and their pride hamstrings learning, especially from foreigners.

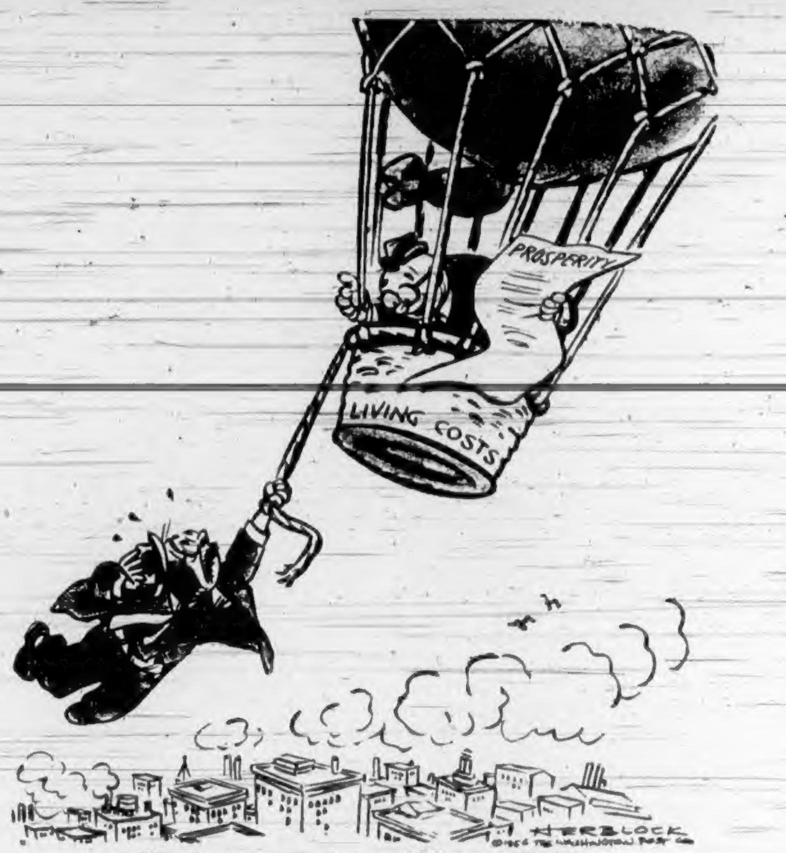
"The Egyptians apparently will never forgive the West for being the source of the necessities of progress—education, technology, and specialists," one diplomat remarked.

In the wake of the current anti-Western feeling, Egyptians resent foreigners (except Communists)—even when the latter are helping them. Although Point Four experts speak in glowing terms of various Egyptian officials with vision and imagination who have been very co-operative, they all encounter inertia and resentment.

Wherever the slightest opportunity arises Egyptians demand control of enterprises instead of co-operating with the foreigners and exploiting their experience and training.

Banks, insurance companies, factories and businesses must be dominated by Egyptians, even if they work less successfully as a result. The same thing is happening with the Suez canal, which from the operational point of view is threatened with loss of efficient navigation.

It is becoming totally a matter of "Egypt for the Egyptians" for better or worse, and the Egyptians are not displaying the flexibility and humility necessary for their new roles.



"Good news — you've reached a new high"

Veteran Ship

By FRANK KELLEY

AN elderly iron steamship, understood to be on its very last ocean passage, cleared the Strait of Juan de Fuca recently. The Ss. Victoria was bound for a Japanese port, loaded with scrap iron, for delivery to a steel-production plant of that country; and following its discharge the veteran of 86 years in the passenger and cargo-carrying services was to be broken up herself in the manufacture of pig iron.

The seafaring life of the Victoria was memorable all the way. Built in Britain and launched in 1870, the old craft was a constant reminder to the sea-going fraternity and students of shipping that the British artisan was hard to excel when good workmanship was the expected virtue; while the materials with which such ships were constructed and powered were altogether sufficient for a vessel rated "A-1 at Lloyd's."

Built for service between Europe and America to order of the Cunard Line, with two other ships owned by the same concern (Abyssinia and Batavia), she was chartered by Canadian Pacific for trans-Pacific service following completion of the railroad across Canada in 1886, when the promoters felt satisfied they could establish services between Britain and the Orient via Canada that would compete for trade and travel with the Suez route.

With that sort of vision Canadian Pacific had lost no time in chartering a United States sailing ship, the barque W. R. Flint, inaugurating a service between this coast and China prior to its deal with Cunard. That first sailing ship delivered in July, 1888, something like 1,240,753 pounds of China tea to company cars at Vancouver; while pending the Cunard charters several other wind-ships delivered tea cargoes at the same place. Most of this went overland and some of it across the Atlantic.

* * *

Possibilities looked bright by the time the ex-Cunarders went into the Pacific service, the Parthia inaugurating it; and it was maintained until the early 1890s when Canadian Pacific replaced the chartered ships with three of its own specially designed and built clipper-bowed steamships, the Empresses of India, China and Japan—unquestionably the most beautiful sea-going craft in all the Pacific. These were to go the way of all things, however, the last of the trio, the Japan, being broken up at Vancouver for its metal about 1926.

Parthia survived them all, as well as the majority of the Empress liners that replaced the first three in CPR's trans-Pacific service. Following her period of usefulness while under charter to Canadian Pacific, she served under various flags in North Pacific waters after being named Victoria, particularly during the Klondike rush; and for years was operated as a unit of Alaska Steamships' fleet, with which cocern she was to render laudable service during the Second World War.

Canadian Pacific had the right hunch that trade with Orient countries would develop with the completion of its trans-Canada road, as well as provoke rivalry with United States and Japenese ship operators. It got plenty; and managed to meet the surface competition by furnishing travel accommodation which under the slogan "Empress to the Orient" captured a very worthwhile share of trans-Pacific travel; for following the fruitful days of the clipper-bowed beauties, these were supplanted with such splendid passenger creations as the Empresses of Canada, Asia, Russia and Japan. The Second World War wrote finis to their Pacific schedules through battle casualty and demands for Atlantic tonnage.

Gerald Waring

Reports from Ottawa

MAYBE you got one of those newsmagazine blurbs the other day telling you why you can't afford to be without this 20-per-cent-taxed "Canadian edition."

"Guns boom along the Gaza Strip," it reported grandiloquently, "and Canadian divisions alert for trouble half way around the world."

The comment, of course, is ludicrous. It's as vacuous as the fact that Canadian troops are covered by the Visiting Forces Act which the British proclaimed in Cyprus the other day.

It should be obvious to everyone that the government's positions on Israel, on Egypt, on Suez and on Cyprus are of studied neutrality. While the Queen was calling soldiers to the colors at the request of her government in London, her government in Ottawa went on holidays as though nothing were happening to disturb the equanimity of her realm.

* * *

In large and to me somewhat disturbing measure what is happening is history repeating itself. For example, Mackenzie King said the Locarno Pact of the 1920s, under which Britain and Italy guaranteed Germany's western boundary, was concerned with "certain matters, which are confined entirely to Europe." Defence Minister Campney described the Suez crisis as "a European matter."

In 1922, when the Turks seemed bent on driving the British from the Dardanelles, war appeared imminent. Lloyd George appealed to the dominions for help. Australia and New Zealand pledged contingents, but Mackenzie King, irked because he saw the news of the appeal in the papers before he received Lloyd George's message, refused aid by the strategem of delay. With time of the essence, he replied that only Parliament could authorize the dispatch of Canadian troops.

Conservative leader Arthur Meighen condemned the government's rejection of the British appeal in the Chanak incident. "Canada," he declared, "should have said, 'Ready, aye ready; we stand by you'."

The Conservatives of 1956 voiced heated demands five weeks ago that Canada stand shoulder to shoulder with Britain in the Suez dispute. But they dropped their voices several octaves as the sobering implications of the issue came home to them. Opposition leader George Drew went on vacation without attempting to match Meighen's impassioned words.

* * *

Mackenzie King, who was noted for his political caution, once told me that it was a mistake for prime ministers to get too far ahead of public opinion. By this criterion Louis St. Laurent seems to be safe.

I don't know to what extent Lester Pearson's wishy-washy on-the-one-hand-but-then-on-the-other statement on Suez last week reflects Canadian opinion. But to my mind it is uncomfortably reminiscent of Mackenzie King's disavowal of his envoy's action at the League of Nations in supporting economic sanctions against Italy following Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia. It is also a curious commentary on the lasting quality of that widely-acclaimed lesson of the Second World War—that dictators should be met by concerted firmness and resolution lest they plunge the world into another holocaust.

Canadian foreign policy, based on a near-sterile UN and a rickety NATO, rejects both a tight Commonwealth alliance with Britain and a tight continental alliance with the U.S. Pearson, perched on the fence, seems desperately afraid of falling on one side or the other.

The Packsack

Getting Too Fancy

By GREGORY CLARK

THE most startling thing that caught my eye on a visit to a big modern lumber camp last week, where they were setting up the winter's operations, was the heating arrangements. They were heating the camps with fuel oil. And the cook stoves were propane gas.

Here in the very heart of the forest, where their job was the most economical production of pulp wood and saw timber, where wood lay about in the greatest profusion, where you could walk out the camp door 50 feet and pick up enough wood for a bonfire such as would have celebrated the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria, the lumber operators were using drums of fuel oil and torpedoes of propane gas hauled in by truck and cat, as being much cheaper than the wages of men to cut the amount of wood right at hand needed to supply the fuel for the coming winter.

There is something very queer here. My father used to say that there are not two sides to every question. There are as many sides to it as there are people looking at it. There are a good many sides to this question of the lumber camps using oil and gas right in the heart of the world's wood supply. The first thing we Canadians can learn from it is the value of wood. We are one of the great wood-producing countries of the world. Its value has risen steadily ever since the days our grandfathers slew their woodlots to make way for arable fields. I suppose a crop of wood nowadays is one of the most valuable that land can produce. Buy a few planks of finished lumber, and see for yourself.

But what makes it so costly, apart from its value? Is it the wages of the workers who cut it in the bush plus the wages of the cat drivers who hoist it out of the bush, plus the wages of the railroad men who transport it to the market, plus the salaries of the office staffs of lumber companies, lumber wholesalers and distributors, lumber retailers? We have got to be careful. It may not be the lumber that is expensive at all. It may be us.

Maybe we are growing too expensive for our tastes. For if it is cheaper to drill for oil and haul it thousands of miles and deliver it into the backwoods of Canada than to hire half a dozen local boys who aren't smart enough to make a living cutting pulpwood or sawlogs, and set them to the task of hacking down a few trees in the immediate vicinity, and splitting them into a hundred cords of stove wood, then our tree-hacking backwoods boys are getting costly indeed.

Or maybe it is simply this: that there aren't any camp cooks left in the world who can cook on a wood stove. We are getting awfully fancy.

City Notebook

Local Improvement

By ORMOND MARRION

AT almost any regular meeting of city council, the audience (if any) can hear Moran Waller read out, at a tobacco auctioneer's pace, a series of items to which council appears to pay little attention.

Those who listen with interest will discern that the assistant clerk is saying something like:

"Barnacle west side Whatsit to Wallop local improvement authorization by-law 1956 this is a by-law authorizing construction of a concrete curb and gutter on the west side of Barnacle from Whatsit to Wallop."

Mr. Waller's commendably energetic rendition of these items never excites council. The items are local improvement by-laws being introduced, and the introduction and passing of local improvement by-laws is so routine and commonplace that the aldermen listen with much less than half an ear.

The chances even seem good that no one would notice if Mr. Waller were one day to read out, at his usual pace, "Waller all sides January to December remuneration improvement authorization by-law 1956."

* * *

But although individually the local improvement by-laws are unsung and almost unnoticed, collectively they are important.

They represent a much greater contribution to the beautification of the city than the well-publicized provincial government grants for beautification.

The provincial government twice gave Victoria $50,000, and this year is contributing $75,000. Victoria taxpayers, through local improvement by-laws, have been undertaking about $120,000 worth of work a year for the past five years, and the annual total is growing.

The acceleration of the demand for local improvements is taken as a sign that more and more home-owners are realizing that by making easy payments on sidewalks, curbs, gutters and paving, they not only can make their streets more beautiful and useful, but can increase the value of their own property.

* * *

A petition for work to be done on any street can originate from an owner on the street or—as seldom happens—council can initiate a local improvement plan.

An owner who wants improvements made usually speaks to other owners in the same block to see if there is a reasonable chance of obtaining at least two-thirds of the total number of possible signatures, representing at least 50 per cent of the total assessed value of lots.

If he is convinced that there is a good chance of success, he notifies the city engineer, who provides petition forms; and if the required number of signatures is obtained, the city engineer presents the petition to council, which passes the local improvement by-law authorizing the work to be done.

* * *

The property owners of the area covered by the petition pay for the improvements, through special assessment taxes, over a period of 15 years.

The city engineer has worked out a scale of estimated annual costs for owners of 50-foot lots, ranging from $9 for curb and gutter only to a maximum of $37, which will buy curb and gutter and sidewalk separated by boulevard, driveway, crosswalk and paving, on a 66-foot right-of-way.

As an inducement to property owners to seek local improvements, the city contributes the cost of road-widening when curbs are installed. (Roads without curbs are usually about 15 feet wide, but the curbs, when built, are placed at the final street-width locations, approximately 30 feet apart.)

* * *

In addition, when improvements are carried out, the property-owners are given help in completing their boulevards: free grass seed is provided, as well as top soil when available, and rubbish from boulevards is removed free if it is piled conveniently.

If owners want the road paved, the base preparation is paid for by the city and only the paving is charged to the owners. If they don't want a paved road, the gravel is oiled the first year and then flush-coated with asphalt and pea-gravel the following year.

With the Classics

Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
Jest, and youthful jollity,
Quips, and cranks, and wanton wiles,
Nods and becks, and wreathed smiles,
Such as hang on Hebe's cheek,
And love to live in dimple sleek;
Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
And Laughter holding both his sides.
Come, and trip it as you go,
On the light fantastic toe.

Letters to the Editor

Over a Barrel

After disgustedly reading the newspaper accounts of the vicious conduct of young hooligans and their wilful destruction of public property, one wonders why an end is not put to same by putting teeth in the laws for these special cases, as special cases require special treatment.

Therefore, in addition to the usual jail sentence, these culprits should also be thoroughly birched on the bare breech for as long as they could take it. There is no use mollycoddling these rascals. Give them something they will understand and respect for the rest of their lives. There is a strong possibility this was neglected in a lighter way in childhood.

Bend them over a barrel in jail and give it to them with the birch on the bare breech with gusto.

Suez Cost Factor

I am sorry if I appeared to underestimate the cost factors in writing about the Suez canal crisis. There is no dispute concerning Capt. G. A. Veres' experienced comments.

The point I was trying to emphasize on the basis of considerable discussion with shipowners was (a) that costs would be increased but even on the basis of Capt. Veres' figure of 10 per cent (I was quoted nearer seven per cent) and allowing that transportation represents 10 per cent of what the consumer pays for his goods, it is still comparatively a small increase; (b) that price of, for example, an extra one cent a gallon on fuel would be a cheap price to pay for peace and for inflicting what might easily be a more effective economic discipline on dictator Nasser; (c) that whether we like it or not the position would have had to be faced 12 years hence with no moral rights on our side; (d) that both Capt. Veres in his Colonist letter of Aug. 10 and other critics base their arguments on ships as they are. Many shipowners are building vessels which will not be able to negotiate the Suez canal anyway, and they believe that the economy of larger loads and more efficient motive power giving greater speed at less cost will make it cheaper to avoid the Suez canal.

Rightly or wrongly, I interpreted this as meaning that shipowners had looked ahead more efficiently than the government. I did not imply that that was more desirable than a display of force which could set the Middle East alight and almost certainly close the canal anyway. Making Nasser bankrupt might be more effective than making him an Arab martyr. Making anyone bankrupt always costs the creditor money. Punching the offender on the nose may give a certain amount of satisfaction, but internationally it costs a lot more money than making him bankrupt.

The Suez canal undoubtedly saves money, but I feel that Sir Anthony Eden exaggerated when he gave dictator Nasser the idea that it was our "life line." When Europe was in flames from 1941 to 1945 we were virtually without the life line and lived — albeit precariously and dangerously.

Need of Opposition

Few fair-minded voters will deny our Social Credit government fair credit for its accomplishments. And our premier gave a very lucid defence of his administration, though many may smile at some of his pretensions.

It is lamentable that the "platforms" of the opposition parties are so flaccid. Nevertheless, under our system, good government without a formidable opposition is not possible. A government's sins are reduced by constructive criticism in the House, and it is only at election time that the citizens can deliver their rebukes. The constant assumption by all SCs of a "holier than thou" attitude is fairly nauseating. Add to that the pretence that our "prosperity" is in any way the result of the application of Social Credit principles!

The government has done some things well, fumbled with some and wholly ignored other duties.

The hospital muddle was courageously grappled with but the problem has not been solved and the government shirks the solution. The costs are too high, and uncontrolled; the service unfairly distributed. No one will object to a two per cent tax for hospitals when this is cured.

Our cost of living is the highest in Canada, although we have climatic advantages. There will be little profit by industries if our production costs bar us from open markets. The sales tax is a major contributant and should be abolished. Agriculture has been neglected. A sound operating basis for production can be found and an available supply of good food at fair prices is a necessity if we seek a sound industrial development. The milk board is an anachronism.

In respect of forestry, power and industrial development, mine and oil production, the government has wobbled, although they had the experience of others to guide them; and they have no policy that will promote development or safeguard public interests or the heritage of posterity. They cannot hide behind the Sloan commission.

Under these circumstances it is surprising that the opposition parties have been able to put in nomination such a fine body of candidates of a calibre well above the norm of the membership of the last legislature, particularly for the Island seats. We have probably most to complain of; the cost of living is highest, the Island "Highway" squatters and the "capital improvements" are lip service only.

Hence I venture to suggest that all good men should come to the aid of the opposition candidate who has best chance of defeating the government nominee. We need a formidable opposition, at least.

Frame-Up by Whom?

Let us call it the "Beret Frame-up," as declared by a Briton in Moscow. I think the gentleman is telling the truth, with this exception, he has not told us where the frame-up took place.

We should all know our Moscow well enough by now to know that not only is it good in athletics but also in mental agility for engineering incidents and climates, as required.

However, the cause of peace might have been better served by offering Mistress Not-so a carload of berets, chartering a plane to fly her back whence she came, wishing her a speedy bon voyage. What is the solution? "Let her go free" and risk a shoplifters' strike.

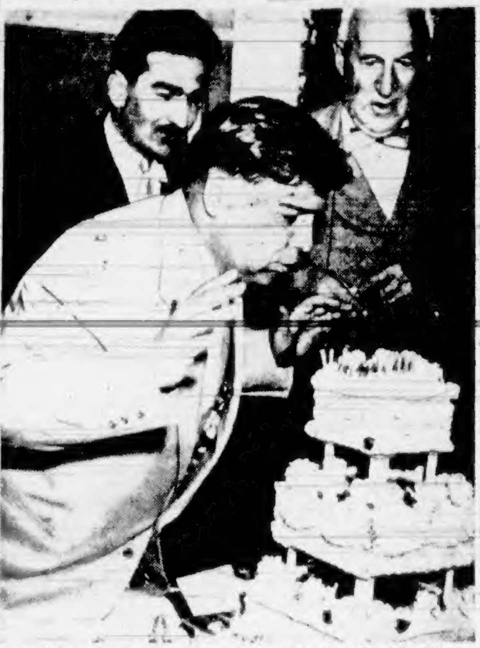
Red Minister on Island



In Nanaimo this morning to visit the Pacific Biological Station at Departure Bay is Russian Fisheries Minister Alexander Ishkov, seen here blowing out the candles on a cake during his recent 51st birthday celebrations in New Brunswick. Watching, at right, was host, Sen. A. Neil McLean, and interpreter, Edward Vardumin. While in Nanaimo, Mr. Ishkov will be accompanied by Federal Fisheries Minister James Sinclair.—(CP)

Ishkov 'at Home' at UBC

His Grin Never Faded

VANCOUVER (CP)—Soviet fisheries Minister Alexander Ishkov and his team of experts felt at home Friday on Canada's rugged Pacific coast.

In three hours on the University of British Columbia's flower-lined campus, the stocky and dynamic minister was addressed in his native tongue more often than during all the rest of his two weeks in Canada.

His infectious grin never lapsed.

The university boasts a large department of Slavonic studies and turned out almost all its Russian-speaking faculty members to entertain the nine visitors.

They took the minister proudly to the gothic-arched library to see a display of scores of Russian books and maps.

Visibly excited, the Soviet politicians darted from table to table, happily identifying textbooks, periodicals and technical handbooks.

When librarian Anne Smith explained sadly that the library lacks Soviet fishing periodicals, Mr. Ishkov smiled, grasped her hand, bowed courteously and said: "Just make me a list of what you want."

The visit was a high spot, too, for Eddie Vardumin, Moscow University gold medalist in English who acted as interpreter for the visit of Canadian Fisheries Minister Sinclair to Russia and arrived unexpectedly on the Soviet return visit.

The keen student was invited by Mr Sinclair, a UBC graduate himself, to take a close look at the university's English facilities.

B.C. Election Roundup

Strachan Suggests McCallum As Man To Lead Road Group

Neil McCallum, who resigned early this year as chief engineer in the highways department, is the man best fitted to head a non-political provincial highways commission, CCF leader Robert Strachan said in Ladysmith.

Roads are being used for political purposes, he said in pledging to take them completely out of the political scene.

"Make no mistake about it," said Mr. Strachan. "The CCF can form a government from the most promising group of candidates ever presented in an election—men who know the problems of the province and have studied its economic needs."

Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson said in Vancouver that the Frank McMahon interests "have a virtual grasp on oil leases in the north country.

"Lumber, too, is going the way of all our natural resources — in the hands of a few."

* * *

Premier Bennett says he hopes to be able to remove tolls from all B.C. bridges "in a few years."

He did not elaborate in making the prediction at a meeting in Salmon Arm.

* * *

"Lay off Sommers," George Tomlinson, an independent candidate in the Sept. 19 provincial election asks.

"Do you think it's nice to be dragged through the muck and mire?" he asked a political rally in North Vancouver.

"I know how Mr. Sommers feels," Mr. Tomlinson said. He himself has been called a member of the Ku Klux Klan by a sensational Vancouver tabloid.

The B.C. government could give complete hospital care "without charging the people one five-cent piece" for it, Saskatchewan Premier Douglas said in Abbotsford.

This would be possible if the government got royalties in proportion to what the prairie province gets on its oil, minerals and timber. minerals and timber.

* * *

Premier Bennett said at Salmon Arm he has never seen the RCMP report on the Sturdy-Sommers case.

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, said at Creston Social Credit has shown itself as a party of broken promises and higher taxes. Taxes increased to $171,900,000 in 1956 from $105,-800,000 in 1952, he said.

School Asked For Retarded

Provincial government has been asked "to take immediate steps" to establish a school and home on Vancouver Island for retarded children.

The request came from the Saanich Peninsula Progressive Conservative Association.

Sunday School Resumes Tomorrow

Thousands of children return to Greater Victoria Sunday schools tomorrow. Here, Rev. Dr. Douglas Kendell given an early welcome to a group of children who will attend St. Saviour's. He is holding five-year-old Ann Swift. Adults are, left, Mrs. M. A. Willis, superintendent of beginners' school, and Mrs. Gertrude White, secretary-treasurer of church school.—(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

In City Churches Sunday

Congregation of St. Aidan's Moves to Larger Quarters

With capacity congregations taxing the small church building, St. Aidan's United church congregation moves tomorrow to the larger church hall.

The hall has been renovated by a committee of volunteers headed by Ernest Crockford.

A choir loft has been built, altar drapes and chancel carpet installed, the organ, pulpit and communion table moved from the old building, and the hall redecorated.

Capacity of the hall is about 350, compared to 150 for the church. Special services will mark the move. Rev. A. Ibbs Avery preaches in the morning on "A New Beginning," and in the evening shows movies he took entitled "Life in the Indian Woods," followed by a fireside and lunch.

A nursery school will be started in the morning to allow parents to attend church while their children are being cared for. Director will be Mrs. L. D. Hall.

St. Aidan's began as a preaching point from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church 83 years ago. The old church building was dedicated Nov. 18, 1884.

* * *

Rev. W. J. Wray, former minister at Prince Rupert, preaches his first sermons at Knox Presbyterian church, Sooke, tomorrow.

* * *

Rt. Rev. P. R. Beattie, Bishop of Kootenay, and former Dean of Christ Church Cathedral, will speak over the CBC Dominion network's Church of the Air at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow. Locally the program may be heard over CJVI.

By REV. TOM R. HAYTHORNE
Minister, Fairfield United Church

We Canadians, like people of every other land, are tempted to live by half-truths. Half-truths lead to whole crises. Whole truths overcome crises.

The most subtle half-truth is fear. Fear is the father of worry. And in the train behind fear come suspicion and ill-will and condemnation.

Fear teams up with propaganda, with misinformation, with caricatures. How many cartoons that depicts other countries feed fear!

We don't live by fear. We die by it. Fear is the opposite of good-will. Eventually the world is going to know that Jesus is right—that the only way to life is by the route of goodwill.

REV. TOM R. HAYTHORNE

Goodwill is that truth which is so whole that it can use for the best ends everything that opposes it. When there is enough goodwill, the storms don't trouble and the spirit can be rested and at peace.

Have you ever thought that God permits the fear-pressure of our times so that we will be pushed to the One who is Goodwill in Person?

There is this One we can have. There is this One we can forget. And there is this One we can go back to after we forget.

He does not put pressure on us. He doesn't pester with fixed rules, particular forms nor special places. We are just to turn to Him as truth, never as half-truth nor 75 per cent truth.

With our mind on Him and His mind in us, difficulties can be pleasant, acceptable, purposeful.

Jesus never proposed any sort of wholeness without unlimited faith in God. Some day the world will discover that unlimited faith in God is whole truth and that anything less than that is half-truth.

Jesus, as the top-overcomer of all time, toppled every half-truth that hit him and crumpled every crisis into triumph. How? He did it by his unique total co-operation with our Father. And over his shoulder he calls the earth, "Follow me in totality of trust in God and in totality of goodwill."

Vacation Over At Colquitz

Students who have had an extra three days of vacation will go back to school Monday at the new Colquitz junior high school.

Grade 9 students will report at 9 a.m. Monday, grade 8 at 10 a.m. and grade 7 at 11 a.m., and classes will be in session all day, the school board announced yesterday.

Drive Starts Soon

Annual canvass of 100,000 Anglicans on Vancouver Island for funds for the diocese of British Columbia starts this month in the Cowichan deanery.

The "Every Member Visitation and Canvass" continues in the northern deanery in October and in Greater Victoria in November. Forty-two parishes and missions are participating.

Building Jumps In B.C.

Building permits issued in incorporated centres of B.C. during the first six months of this year totalled $13,362,000—a jump of 24 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Permits issued in Port Alberni totalled a monstrous $3,091,450.

BIG BIRDS

Two species of eagles are found in Canada, the golden eagle and the bald eagle.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices generally held to a narrow range in dull trade.

Better export interest showed in Canadian barley with reports that a cargo was sold to the United Kingdom. The business, however, found little reflection in the market.

Oats and barley dealings were mostly domestic, although light American buying came out in oats and small export demand in barley.

General light buying in all grains was prompted by further frost overnight in the Prairie grain belt. Flax attracted buying by international houses, while the Americans were sellers. Prices were irregular. Rye trade was light and mostly routine.

CHICAGO (AP) — All wheat futures except July scored new seasonal highs in moderately active dealings.

Other grains generally were firm although they did not match wheat's gains and toward the finish gave up ground. Buying in wheat seemed inspired mainly by the belief export business will expand shortly.

Stock Prices Break Sharply Near Close

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials suffered their sharpest index loss in three months as they led the stock market lower Friday in light trading.

Almost all industrial group suffered more losses than gains with only one or two groups showing a balanced total.

International Nickel lost 1¼ points in senior base metals while Falconbridge was off a point.

Canada Southern Pete featured western oils with a 75-cent gain to touch a new high of $5.75. General Pete A was up 20 cents but most other stocks lost as much as 35 cents.

Oils Lose at N.Y.

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks retreated along a broad front with individual losses running to more than 2 points.

International oil stocks were among the issues hardest hit in the sell-off, mainly reflecting uncertainties about how the Suez talks will end. Gulf lost more than 2 and Royal Dutch almost 2.

Chemical, steel, railroad, utility and numerous specialty stocks showed losses ranging to more than a point. Aircraft stocks bucked the general trend, with North American up around 3 to a new high and Lockheed up around a point. Douglas also added around 3.

U.S. Smelting stood out in the metals with a gain of more than 2. However, Alcoa was off more than a point. Losses also appeared in Reynolds Metals, Newmont Mining and Anaconda. Steels also backtracked.

Nickel Moves Back

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges closed sharply down Friday in quiet trading.

Papers were hard - hit as St. Lawrence Corporation and McLaren dropped four points. In steels Atlas retreated two points while Algoma backed away 1½.

International Nickel slipped 1¾ in the base metals. B-A, Canadian and Imperial all slipped ¾ in the refining oils. Trans Mountain Pipe Line firmed ¾.

Mines were generally down.

Copper Trend Mixed

VANCOUVER—Prices eased over a fairly wide front, but changes were small.

Among coppers Trojan and Midwest Copper held firm, but Granduc, Canam and Bethlehem were lower. Jackson Basin made a four-cent gain to 25 cents.

American Standard, Premier Border, Silver Ridge and Surf Inlet lost ground among the cheaper mining stocks.

Vantor dipped among oil to 1.75, Charter to 2.25 and Fort St. John to 3.15. Midwest was off 15 cents at 4.35.

$70,000,000 Deal Cooking

By HARRY YOUNG
(Colonist Business Editor)

Financing to the value of $70,000,000 has been arranged by Northspan Uranium to bring its three Blind River properties and mills into production.

Northspan announces that $25,000,000 of first mortgage bonds will be taken by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York and the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and that a further $45,000,000 of general mortgage bonds will be sold privately through underwriters. The general mortgage bonds, like those of other uranium companies, will carry detachable stock purchase warrants.

Northspan is controlled by The Rio Tinto of Canada mining company which recently merged the Peach, Spanish American and Lake Nordic properties.

It holds a $240,000,000 uranium contract with Eldorado Mining and Refining, the Crown's uranium corporation, and proposes to build three mills in the Blind River area with a daily capacity of 9,000 tons.

The mills are expected to be in operation by next fall.

CHARTER STRIKES OIL

Charter Oil has made a Devonian oil strike in the Hanna area of Alberta, formerly listed as a natural gas field in the Viking, Blairmore and Mississippian formations.

The oil was encountered at 3,900 feet and the first test gave 500 feet of clean oil.

Charter has nearly 40,000 acres in the area subject to sliding scale royalties to Standard of California on most of the land, and to Central Leduc and Del Rio on four half sections.

The well Charter-Calstandard Youngstown 6-24 is about 20 miles east of the existing natural gas wells in the Hanna area.

CHEQUE TOTAL DOWN

Cheques exchanged at the Victoria clearing house again dropped below the $10,000,000 mark in the week ending Sept. 6. The total was $9,089,725 against $9,024,294 in the corresponding week of 1955.

WINNIPEG TAKES MORE

Imperial Oil is to increase the capacity of its Winnipeg oil pipeline by one-third to 38,000 barrels a day.

The line draws crude from the Interprovincial Pipeline at Gretna, Man., and pumps it 75 miles to the Winnipeg market. The higher throughput is due to the growth of the Winnipeg oil consumption.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

SUMMIT, N.J.—Johnny Saxton had boxed five fast, hard rounds with a pair of middleweights named Joe Shaw and Tommy Dixon, and when that was over he had gone curvetting and caracoling about the ring with the high, exaggerated knee-action of a halfback at football practice, and then he shadow-boxed and slipped swiftly through a course of calisthenics and now he was in his dressing room, on his feet with a towel about his naked middle, talking as though he feared being struck dumb before he could get everything said.

Next Wednesday night he'll be fighting Carmen Basilio in Syracuse defending the welterweight championship which some thought he stole from Basilio last spring. He is splendidly fit, without a milligram of excess flesh on a body so neatly and compactly formed that when you measure him by eye you'd swear he was a lightweight. Temperamentally, he is charged like a new battery.

He talked about many things—about his dismal fight with Kid Gavilan when he won the title for the first time, about the Chicago match with Basilio when he regained the championship on a disputed decision, and away back to the days when he was a 13-year-old in an orphan asylum in Riverdale, N.Y., and his hero, Joe Louis, would come visiting there.

Later he worked in the gym with Ray Robinson, who became a hero to him, too, and taught him much. A visitor said that didn't surprise him, because sometimes in the ring Saxton made moves that were exactly like Robinson's moves, and Johnny said yes, he'd been told that before. He hadn't consciously copied Robinson, he said, but you'd pick up tips subconsciously and later when somebody noticed the similarity you'd know where you had learned that move.

Pupil and Master

"Now, suppose Robinson gets by Gene Fullmer," it was suggested, "and you win from Basilio. Say you take him out, or something, and there's a demand for a match with Robinson. Of course, you're a professional and you fight for a purse. But just for your own satisfaction, would you like to fight Robinson?"

Delighted, Saxton crowed as a man might applaud a mind-reader who had discerned his secret thoughts.

"I would," he said. "I would, I'd love to fight Ray, and I got it in my heart I could beat him. I have the will and ability to beat him. I'd love to fight him, and it would be a real good attraction."

"You must have day dreams," it was remarked, "do you ever picture that fight punch by punch?"

Not punch by punch, he started to say, and he was going to explain as any fighter would, that you can't draw the pattern of any bout in advance, but he was interrupted. This was pure fiction, he was reminded, just dream stuff. He laughed with pleasure.

"Yes," he said, "it's like this—" He was in a half-crouch now, moving in against a phantom Robinson and his clenched fists were pumping swiftly, lefts and rights shooting low.

Robinson Down

"I'm working on his body," Saxton said, "and he backs away because we know he don't like there—" he laughed. "Nobody does. I'm in there throwing combinations and he staggers, he sags into the ropes—"

As he spoke of Robinson backing off he had sucked in his own waistline, pulling it away from imagined blows, and now his legs went rubbery and he tottered back toward a corner of the room.

"—the referee comes in and Ray straightens up and it's a left, a right and another left in the body—" he was Saxton throwing the punches and then he was Robinson taking them. His left leg went limp and he pivoted as it refused his weight, going down in a slow, twisting fall. "—and he goes down."

"All to the body?" a fellow protested, "not even one finishing punch to the head for the sake of the fans upstairs?"

Saxton shook his head. "To the body," he said firmly. "When a fella's hurt, you don't know what a punch to the body can do. A right hand that misses the head—" he threw a long, round-house swing—"everybody sees it. They don't see me dig the left underneath—" and he moved in and threw that punch short.

"But for television," it was protested, "for the movies, there's got to be a couple to the head."

"All right," Saxton said, laughing. "I change the dream. You're right. I finish him with a left-right to the jaw."

Fame Is the Spur

Saxton spoke with respect of Basilio, of how tough Carmen was and how perfectly conditioned. Still, he said, he felt that he beat Basilio in Chicago and he believed that when you'd whipped a fellow once you went in against him the second time with extra confidence, resolved to make a bigger score.

"Besides having the title and making money, Johnny, do you think about the public accepting you as a good fighter?"

Saxton's eyes widened. "You got it, Bill," he said. "I don't know if you're a psychology or what, but you got it. We talk about it a lot, Gene Burton here and the other fellas and me. I got the title and I want the money and I want the credit, too. What's the use of being welterweight champion of the world if maybe 30 per cent of the public says, 'Saxton? Oh—ahh—well. . . .'"

"Then take Basilio out," he was advised. "What made Carmen's reputation? Stopping Tony DeMarco twice, that's what."

"Carmen takes an awful good punch," the fighter said thoughtfully. "It could be, though. It could be a knockout."

Stuke Launches Grid Season

One of Western Canada's biggest football boosters and former coach of Edmonton Eskimos and B.C. Lions, Annis Stukus performed the opening kickoff ceremonies at Royal Athletic park last night as Oak Bay Drakes opened the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League season with an 18-9 triumph over Navy. Drakes Flash Power In 18-9 Win over Tars

By JIM TAYLOR

Defending champion Oak Bay Drakes showed impressive power and gave promise of even better things to come at Royal Athletic park last night as they bounced Navy, 18-9, in the opening game of the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League season.

Over 2,000 fans—largest crowd in league history—turned out to see the highly-publicized 1956 edition of the Drakes. And the Drakes provided plenty that was worth seeing. [illegible] out of a [illegible] formation, Oak Bay unleashed a fine ground offence and an adequate passing attack, giving fair warning that they are going to be tough to beat in their bid for another shot at the western Canada intermediate title.

SLICK FIELD GENERAL

Led by the two-touchdown effort of fullback Rick Ginn and the slick field-generalship of Tom Sanregret, Drakes rolled to a 12-3 half-time lead and held a desperate Navy squad to one touchdown in the second half while scoring one of their own.

Not that the victory was an easy one. Frank Hindle's hard-charging Sailors, tackling viciously all the way, fought Drakes for every yard. Statistically, the Sailors held an edge in the game, rolling for 20 first downs to 12 by the Drakes and travelling for 184 yards through the air, as compared to 155 for Drakes.

The difference lay in the ground attack. Both clubs made 127 yards rushing, but the Drakes had the ability to get their yards when they were needed most. Navy, unfortunately, did not.

NAVY TAKES LEAD

For the first five minutes of the game, the upset-minded Tars looked unbeatable. Veteran quarter Joe Hornosty, passing with pinpoint accuracy, guided Navy from his own 30-yard line to the Oak Bay six. When two plays failed to gain, Doug Brown dropped back and booted a 16-yard field goal for a 3-0 Navy lead.

However the Drakes soon took over the lead, riding on the passing arm of Sanregret to the Navy five after Pete Turko recovered a Navy kick on the Sailors' 30. Ginn bulled over from there, making it 6-3. Gordon Hemmingway's attempted drop-kick convert was wide.

Ginn carried over from the five-yard stripe again with two minutes left until half-time and again the convert was wide leaving the Drakes up, 12-3, at the half. Oak Bay got its final touchdown in the third quarter on a 50-yard pass play from Sanregret to Ken Calderhead, who got up on the Navy 10-yard line after being tackled and went on for the major and an 18-3 lead.

SAILORS MARCH

Bud Brown, who took over the quarterbacking chores for Navy in the second half, marched the aroused Sailors to the Oak Bay seven in the fourth quarter and Bob Gooderham carried from there for Navy's first touchdown. Brown split the uprights with the convert to put Navy back in the game, 18-9.

Oak Bay fumbled the kickoff on their own 15-yard line and the ball was smothered by a host of Navy linemen. Navy carried to the one-yard line, but the attack ran out of steam there as three straight quarterback sneaks were held by Drakes' Harry Turner and Dick Irvin.

Coach Freddy French complained after the game that his Drakes were "rusty" and that he was far from pleased with the outcome, but the work of some of his veterans must have given him some cause for pleasure.

TURKO STANDOUT

Turner and Irvin were iron men in the line and Pete Turko played a standout game at end, showing more speed than he exhibited all last season. Among the newcomers, Ginn consistently reeled off large gains and Sanregret's ball-handling was almost perfection.

Hindle was disappointed by the loss, but not downhearted. "After the boys get to know each other, we'll give them a handful of trouble," he stated.

Next Friday night Drakes meet Mayo Vampires at Royal Athletic park in the second game of the season.

Plays Today

JOHN CLIFFORD

Classy winger of New Westminster Royals, John Clifford will be in the line-up for the mainland team today when Royals meet Victoria United in a Pacific Coast Soccer League match at Royal Athletic park. Victoria, which has shown steady improvement this season, can take the second-half lead with a victory today. Kickoff time is 2.30.

Braves Drop Fourth Straight; Dodgers Split as Reds Lose

Milwaukee Braves dropped their fourth straight game in the sizzling National League pennant chase Friday but retained their game-and-a-half lead as Cincinnati Redlegs lost a 1-0 decision to St. Louis and the Brooklyn Dodgers split a double-header with New York Giants.

Hard-throwing Sam Jones scattered seven hits as Chicago's last-place Cubs continued to act as spoilers with a 5-0 victory over Milwaukee. The Redlegs, who had won three straight decisions, managed only two hits off Vinegar Bend Mizzell in their setback.

Brooklyn continued to have trouble against the also rans, dropping the opener by a 6-2 count but winning the second game, 3-1, on Carl Furillo's two-run homer in the 11th inning. The Dodgers, playing their fourth doubleheader in six days, moved into a tie for second with the Redlegs.

Jones, who pitched a no-hitter last season, struck out seven on his way to his eighth victory against 13 defeats. And the Cubs teed off on 16-game winner Bob Buhl for one run in the first inning and a four-run splurge in the sixth featured by three straight doubles.

Ken Boyer's seventh-inning home run—only his second since the all-star game—beat the Redlegs and Joe Nuxhall, who gave up just three hits in his seven-inning stint. The only hits off Mizell, now 13-12, were a second-inning single by Wally Post and a single by rookie Frank Robinson in the ninth.

NEWK WINS 23RD

Furillo's 18th homer, his first hit of the game, followed a walk with two out in the 11th off losing reliefer Dick Littlefield and provided Don Newcombe with his 23rd victory of the season. Newcombe went all the way on a six-hitter and is the biggest Dodger winner since 1924 when Dazzy Vance won 28.

Willie Mays drove in three runs with his 28th and 29th home runs in the opener, beating Carl Erskine and giving Johnny Antonelli his 15th decision.

In the American League, New York's league-leading Yankees and the second-place Cleveland Indians both lost. The Yanks dropped a 6-5 verdict to Washington despite four runs batted in by catcher Yogi Berra.

Mickey Mantle's hopes of breaking Babe Ruth's home run record of 60 were all but shattered as the Yankee outfielder again failed to hit for the circuit. Mantle now needs 14 homers in 19 games to break Ruth's 1927 record.

A walk and Nellie Fox's triple in the seventh inning broke a 1-1 deadlock and gave Chicago White Sox a 2-1 victory over Cleveland. Jack Harshman, beating the Indians for the fourth time, won his 13th with a four-hitter while Bob Lemon, an 18-game winner, was the loser.

Marlene Takes Title; Parent Ousts Bigelow

Margaret Todd of Victoria lost in her bid for a fifth Totem Pole golf championship Friday when she went down to a 3-1 defeat to Marlene Stewart, Canadian women's champion, at Jasper.

Playing sub-par golf, the little Fonthill, Ont., swinger was never behind against her Victoria opponent. Marlene, the tourney's medalist, fired a three-under-par 36 going out and took the 16th and 17th holes after Mrs. Todd had cut the deficit to one hole.

Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, a two-time runner-up in men's championship play, was ousted in the semi-finals by Erv Parent, former Washington State amateur champion. Bigelow, who took men's medal honors, lost a 5 and 4 verdict to the long-hitting Seattle golfer.

Parent will meet Seattle's youthful Murray Marsh for the title in a 36-hole final today. Marsh easily defeated the 1954 champion, Warren Dawson of Seattle, by a 4 and 3 score.

Famed Sportsman Dies

LONDON (AP)—Charles Burgess Fry, one of Britain's most famous sportsmen, died Friday at his Hampstead home. He was 84.

Described as one of the world's greatest all-round athletes in his day, Fry also was a scholar, a writer and a member of Parliament.

"C. B.," as he was generally known, set a world broad jump record in 1892, captained England at cricket and was an outstanding soccer and rugby player. He boxed, swam, sculled, played tennis and threw the javelin in top-flight company.

Later he was a celebrated writer. And he might have been king of Albania.

During the years between the First and Second World Wars he served as a delegate for India at the League of Nations in Geneva. He wrote a speech for the famed Indian spokesman, Ranji, hitting hard at Mussolini.

The Albanians later sent a delegation to Geneva to find "an English country gentleman with £10,000 (then about $40,000) a year" to become their king.

Fry later related he qualified on the first count but not the second.

Speaking Briefly

Canadians Miffed at Connie; May Decline Moscow Trip

Possibility that Vernon Canadians, reigning Allan Cup hockey champions, would not represent Canada at the world hockey tournament in Russia next winter grew stronger yesterday as players on the interior club took exception to a remark made by Connie Smythe.

Smythe, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs, said that Canada's proposed entry in the world hockey tournament will be a "fourth-rate team" and suggested sending a National Hockey League team if the tournament is to be considered a world championship.

Vernon coach George Agar, following a meeting of his players, said Canadians will "keep away from the whole deal."

"If we're going to be a fourth-rate choice of Canada," said Agar, "then we don't want any part of it. We would certainly consider going to Moscow as a unit, with extra players from across Canada to bring us up to strength, but we won't entertain any other ideas.

"We are the Allan Cup champions and we played hard to get that championship. We took three years to build what we thought was a championship team, and now we are called fourth-rate by Smythe. We were never even tested all last year."

The Burners tripped last year's Mann Cup finalists, 15-10. . . . Arnold Palmer moved into the lead in the Rubber City Open golf tournament at Akron, Ohio, Friday with a 36-hole total of 135, two strokes better than Dave Douglas, Don Fairfield and Ed Furgol. . . . The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Friday that a private company's offer to sponsor a Canadian all-star entry in the world hockey championships has been withdrawn.

Cougars May Hire Couch

Norm Couch, former general manager of the now-defunct Saskatoon Quakers, may become general manager of the Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League, it was learned yesterday.

Victora club officials would make no comment on the report. The position became vacant when Fred Hutchinson died of a heart seizure while playing golf last Sunday.

Indians Whip Junior Rocks

VANCOUVER — Mount Pleasant Indians won their second straight B.C. junior lacrosse championship here last night, trouncing Victoria Shamrocks, 21-4, in the second game of a two-game, total-goal series.

Indians won the opening game of the series, 14-10, in Victoria last week, giving them the series, 35-14.

Three New Teams Enter . . . . . . International Tournament

Tuna Anglers Still Have Faith in Soldier's Rip

WEDGEPORT, N.S. (CP)—"World series fever" again is beginning to grip this famed fishing community but it doesn't concern baseball. It's the 13th International Tuna Tournament, starting Sept. 12.

Seven, perhaps eight, nations will be represented and three of them—Peru, Portugal and Germany—will be making their first bid for the Sharp Trophy, a world championship in deepsea angling.

The other teams, comparatively old hands at the business of boating 600-pound "horse mackerel," are the British Commonwealth, United States, Mexico and Argentina. An eighth team may turn up from Cuba.

Before the three-day tournament opens, practice rounds will be under way. Anglers who spend thousands of dollars on equipment and transportation like to get out ahead of time to test the grounds.

The fishing grounds are the world-famous Soldier's Rip, a turbulent mile-wide stretch of water where the Atlantic tuna pack heads in late summer to feed on schools of herring and mackerel. It's called the Rip because of the action of constantly changing tides over a relatively shallow plateau on which the smaller fish feed.

The fact last year's tournament produced only two tuna, poorest catch in the history of the contest, has not lessened the interest. Spokesmen for the Nova Scotia government which sponsors the affair say there may be 10 teams next year. Italy and Uruguay have expressed their desire to send teams.

And all competing teams say that Soldier's Rip is still "the best tuna hole" in the world. The disappointments of 1955 were chalked down as merely "a bad year." The tuna were there, but they were just not hungry.

The records show 1949 was the most productive year. A total of 72 fish were boated that year with the United States team leading the parade on 18 catches totalling 7,591 pounds.

At dawn next Wednesday Wedgeport's fleet of sturdy Cape Island boats will head for the playoff and the payoff.

And like other world series there will be the attendant judges and umpires, for the rules are many and rigid.

Horsemen Preparing For Sandown Move; First Runner Listed

With only two days of racing remaining at Vancouver's Exhibition park, mainland horsemen have been preparing to move for Vancouver Island's 14-day meet, which starts next Saturday at Sandown park, near Sidney.

Applications by horsemen for [illegible] 170 thoroughbreds have been received by the Ascot Jockey Club and a good number of applications are not yet in the hands of the track operators.

VICTORIA TRAINERS

Among the horses expected to be shipped in to the Sidney track are local trainer Don Carley's string of Sunday Painter, Jane Grey, Information, Mount Baker, Mount Tolmie and Grey Legend. Other Victoria trainers include Merle Harrop with Shake Again and Gerry Milburn, who will bring the front-running Captain Turley.

Norman Leaver will bring handicap starter Porters Pebble, Brazen Jewel, Judge Carter and Penny Peeble. Doc Darbyshire, trainer for the Montrose Stable owned by Vancouver financier F. Ronald Graham has an outstanding string headed by Steven C. Chalon and Trial Judge.

Last year's meet, which provided Victorians with their first thoroughbred racing since 1948, attracted almost 300 horses. Purse money totalled almost $64,000 in the 1955 14-day meet and almost as much will be offered this year. There will be two co-features on each day's card.

LATER START

Week-day racing will start later this year because of the fact that daylight saving time will still be in effect and post-time during the week will be 3.30. Saturday racing will get under way at 2.30.

First list of horses:

Defends Title

DICK VARLEY

One of the outstanding drivers at Western Speedway this year, Dick Varley will be seeking his second straight Vancouver Island stock car championship in the 60-lap feature of tonight's car racing card at the Millstream road track. Favored to win the title is Dick Willoughby, who has won six main events this season. Time trials start at 7.30.

Als, Eskimos Risk Unbeaten Records

Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes both put unbeaten streaks on the block today as eight of Canada's nine major professional football teams swing into action for the start of what appears to be a hectic weekend.

The Eskimos, defending Western Interprovincial Football Union champions, meet Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina tonight in a bid for a fifth straight victory. Calgary Stampeedrs meet B.C. Lions at Vancouver in tonight's other WIFU game.

Alouettes will be seeking their fourth straight triumph in the Big Four Football Union today when they clash with the crippled Toronto Argonauts. The second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats meet Ottawa Rough Riders in the other eastern game.

SHUFFLE BACKFIELD

Eskimos, who drubbed the Roughies 15-3 in the opening game of the season, have shuffled their backfield because of the injury to import Johnny Bright, who is out for the season with a shoulder separation. Edmonton coach Pop Ivy said last night that tackle Bob Dean has been called up from the reserve list to fill out the import roster.

More than 23,000 seats have been sold at Vancouver for Stampeders' first appearance. Lions have dropped three straight after winning their first two games and coach Clem Crowe plans to use newcomer Jerry Gustafson at the quarterback spot tonight.

To make room for Gustafson, a Stanford University performer last season, Crowe has dropped fullback Doug Peters.

Big Four officials hope to iron out the confusion of the new import rule at a special meeting at Ottawa Sunday. There were reports yesterday that league president James P. McCaffrey would resign if Big Four officials backed up Toronto and Montreal, the two clubs who defied a directive handed down by McCaffrey regarding the import rule.

Tenpin League Seeks Teams

Two teams are needed to fill out the proposed six-team senior tenpin league at Strathcona Bowling Alleys, slated for Thursday night at 9.

Applications may be made to alley manager Roy Begg or to Tom Nute at 3-5951, before Wednesday, Sept. 13. On that date the league will hold its organizational meeting at 8 p.m. at the Strathcona alleys.

VIC SEIXAS

Ageing Seixas Last U.S. Hope To Keep Title from Aussies

By OSCAR FRALEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP)—Aging Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and three young Australians, Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall and Neale Fraser, walloped their way into the semi-finals of the U.S. tennis championships Saturday as Yankee hopes Ham Richardson and Dick Savitt fell by the wayside.

On a cool, sunlit day on which the United States' Davis Cup hopes were bruised and almost broken, the dead-tired but dead-game Seixas was the only American to withstand the Australian onslaught.

Towering Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., gave it a game try. But, in the day's final match, the rust which had gathered in four years off the circuit helped to cut down the big Jerseyman. He succumbed at last in a 6-4, 7-5, 8-10, 6-1, heart-stopper which sent the tiny Rosewall into today's semi-finals against Seixas.

The laboring Seixas, a 33-year-old Philadelphian nearing the end of the big-time tennis trail, battled to a grim 9-7, 3-6, 9-7, 10-12, 6-4 win over Aussie Ashley Cooper but another of the dandies from "down under," 22-year-old Neale Fraser, knocked off Richardson, America's top Davis Cup hope, 3-6, 6-3, 5-2, 6-4.

That made it an all-Australian semi-final in one bracket where the slender, curly-haired Fraser now moves against hammering Lew Hoad, the Australian favorite who roared over his countryman, Roy Emerson, 8-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Althea Gibson, the New York negress, seeking to become the first of her race to win the U.S. title, moved into the women's semi-finals along with Mrs. Betty Pratt of Jamaica. In the other bracket, Wimbledon champion Shirley Fry meets Britain's Shirley Bloomer in today's semi-finals.

Miss Gibson, 28, and the winner of 17 tournaments abroad this winter, defeated 19-year-old Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., 9-7, 6-1, while Mrs. Pratt used drop shots and chop shots for a comeback upset over fourth-seeded Mrs. Dorothy Knode of New York, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

But the big match of the day was the one in which the dragging Seixas, spotting Cooper 14 years, finally conquered the young Australian. It required all the veteran's savvy and he used every shot and trick in the book to win.

When it was over, Vic wearily leaped the net to shake hands with his tall opponent. Seixas in reaching the semi-finals in five matches, had played a total of 23 sets and 273 games. By comparison, the favored Hoad needed only 16 sets and 124 games.

Hoad, shooting at the finish of a U.S.-Wimbledon-French-Australian grand slam which hasn't been accomplished since Don Budge did it in 1938, displayed awesome, all-court power as he racked up Emerson.

And Fraser, who unexpectedly earned the right to face Hoad in the semi-finals as he beat the third-seeded Richardson, showed a poised-and polished game as he downed red-haired Ham and shook America's already weak Davis Cup hopes. Unquestionably, Richardson, the 23-year-old Rhodes scholar from Westfield, N.J., was not at the top of his game as he committed frequent killing errors.

Thus at the end of a chill, windy day, once again the top American hope was the aging Seixas—the man they said was "through" but who was the big one left to face the terrors of the court from "down under."

Surridge Led Surrey To New Win Record

LONDON (Reuters)—Led by captain Stuart Surridge, Surrey scored a total of 200 points in 15 victories to set a record in winning the English county cricket championship for the fifth year in succession.

Runner-up among the 17 counties participating for the season, which ended Thursday, was Lancashire, which tallied 180 points in 12 wins.

The total of points is arrived at by granting 12 points for a victory in each match and four points for first innings leads in matches drawn or lost. Each county plays 28 games in the championship contest.

Surridge piloted his team in all five years of victory. Only two other players in the history of English cricket have come near the record, Alfred Shaw of Nottinghamshire (1883-86) and A. B. Sellers of Yorkshire (1937-46) led their teams triumphantly for four consecutive seasons.

Lancashire, which has not won a title since 1934 and tied for it in 1950, kept the championship open this season until the two counties met last week. Rain interrupted the match when a win for Lancashire could have kept it in the running.

Prospects of Surrey claiming a sixth season championship next year, though under a different captain, England captain Peter May, are reported good. Besides May, Surrey can call on outstanding test stars Jim Laker, Tony Lock, Alec Bedser and Peter Loader.

Results in Britain Friday:

T. N. Pearce's XI 272 and 9 declared and 200 for 7 declared, Australians 260 and 7 declared and 103 for 5. Australians won by 5 wickets.

England XI vs. Commonwealth XI (at Torquay), match abandoned, wicket saturated.

Surrey vs. Warwickshire, match abandoned, wicket saturated.

Commonwealth XI 171 for 4 vs. England XI (at Hastings), match abandoned, no play Friday, wicket saturated.

Winning Contract

BRIDGE QUIZ

The value of a hand does not depend upon high cards alone; what's more, even the high-card value fluctuates according to the bidding of the other players. Fitting cards are worth more; cards in front of a adverse bidder are worth less than the same cards placed behind him. Today's quiz was inspired by Dick Gilman's intelligent questioning of a bid cited in this column some weeks ago.

With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass

What should South rebid with each of the following hands?

(a)	(d)
♠ 9 2	♠ Q J 9
♡ Q J 10 9 8	♡ Q 10 9 8 6
◇ A 4 3	◇ A 2
♣ A Q 8	♣ A 9 8

(b)	(e)
♠ Q J 9	♠ Q J 9
♡ Q 10 9 8	♡ Q 10 9 8
◇ A 9 4 3	◇ A 7 6 2
♣ A 10	♣ A Q

(c)	(f)
♠ J 9 2	♠ 2
♡ Q 10 9 8 7	♡ A Q 10 9 8 7
◇ A Q	◇ A 9 8
♣ A 9 8	♣ Q J 2

(a) Two hearts. You have a minimum opening bid with a rebiddable five-card suit. You are not strong enough to do anything more than make the promised rebid.

(b) Three diamonds. This bid, while seemingly strong, is less encouraging than a two-no-trump rebid as far as its promise of additional top-card strength. It is not a forcing rebid and gives partner a natural stopping place if he has a minimum or subminimum two-diamond bid.

(d) Three diamonds. This is the bid that caused the controversy. But compare this hand with (a) or (d) facing the cards partner actually held and you will see that because your queen is in diamonds your hand is worth an encouraging response. (Partner's hand: S. A x x H. x x D. K J x x x C. K x x.)

(d) Two hearts. Same kind of hand as (a). The more solid spade stopper does not make this hand worth a two-no-trump rebid.

(e) Two no-trump. Two points more in high cards than (b), plus some advantage in having the lead come up to this hand at no-trump.

(f) Three hearts. There should be a play for game opposite even a minimum two-diamond takeout, which should include 10 points. This rebid, while powerful, is not absolutely forcing.

STRONG CONTENDER

A strong contender for the E. M. Whyte trophy awarded annually for the most points in all divisions is H. B. Currie, 82, who first started exhibiting in local fairs more than 40 years ago. Mr. Currie has won 11 first, 15 second, three third and three special prizes in this year's fair. He took the Scott Cracknell perpetual shield for the best male bird in the poultry section and also won the award for the best pen in the show with his barred Plymouth Rocks.

J. H. Galliford won the Port Flower Shop trophy for most points in the flower division and Fred Drinkwater, also a veteran exhibitor, took the aggregate award in divisions C, D and E field fruit and garden produce.

FARMERS' DAY

Today will be farmers' day at the fair. Livestock will be judged and a horse show will be a feature event.

An estimated 1000 persons attended the fair on opening day Thursday and [illegible] realized that their 11th fair is headed for a successful three-day run.

The fair was officially opened by T. S. Barrett, MP. Neil McLellan welcomed visitors on behalf of the fall fair board. He expressed appreciation of the work of [illegible] and [illegible]. William McLeod spoke for the [illegible]. Other speakers were Mayors [illegible] Wright and Loran Jordan of the twin cities.

G. L. Chatterton, regional VLA supervisor, presented cheques to Mr. and Mrs. P. Haracha and Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Impey, winners respectively of first and second prizes in the VLA small holdings improvement contest.

POULTRY SHOW

The poultry division is among outstanding features of the fair. Poultry commissioner H. Pope, who judged the entries, stated that the division is second best in B.C. district fairs and the 4-H Poultry Club exhibits are second only to the PNE.

In the 4-H Club [illegible] [illegible] Steven was first for points, Aali Davies second, Robert Stephens third.

Beaver Creek area won first prize for district exhibit of field, orchard and garden produce.

Jury Clears Driver

NANAIMO—An assize court jury here took only 20 minutes yesterday to return a not guilty verdict on Leonard John Pohto, 18, of Sointula, B.C., who was charged with criminal negligence resulting in the death of his sister-in-law, Elsie Irene Pohto. The trial, under Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker, lasted nearly three days. Pohto was the driver of a car that hit a truck on New Year's Eve.

Pinned Rider Hurt as Mount Falls

DUNCAN — A young Sidney girl was "fairly seriously injured" yesterday during jumping trials at the horse show being held in conjunction with the three-day Cowichan Exhibition here.

Janet Barclay, in her early teens, was injured when her horse fouled the top bar of a two-bar jump and then seemed to tuck its head down and settle to the ground. The horse's weight settled on the girl and held her pinned until the horse struggled to its feet.

Horsemen who witnessed the accident said they had never seen a horse act quite like Miss Barclay's mount when it failed at the jump.

Thursday night a young girl was shaken up when thrown from one of the midway rides. She was treated at King's Daughters Hospital and released.

Judging of the livestock entries proceeded all day yesterday. Joe Saville, Cobble Hill, made a clean sweep of the [illegible] being the only entry. He took 16 firsts, six seconds and four thirds, as well as 11 championship awards for both male and female senior and junior animals.

Tom D. Groves led with Herefords, taking seven firsts, four seconds, junior champion female, senior champion female and grand champion female.

Alex Turner and son swept the board with Aberdeen Angus entries, taking 11 firsts, six seconds and two thirds as well as junior champion bull, grand champion bull, junior champion female and grand champion female.

In poultry classes, Moses Flynn won the Buckerfield trophy for the second time running for grand champion poultry show.

H. S. Thuillier had the grand champion [illegible] turkey in the show and best heavy Tom and took two firsts, two seconds and one third in the turkey classes.

Island Road Hitch

Sole Bid Received Proves Too Costly

Provincial highways department will call again for tenders for a three-mile stretch of the west coast road from Jordan River to Port Renfrew because the one bid received this week was too high.

[illegible] Construction Co. Ltd. submitted a tender of $[illegible] for construction of the middle section of the road. The tender was rejected as too costly.

PARTLY BUILT

The northern section of the road, which has already been built, was constructed by B.C. Forest Products and the southern section will be built by Alaska Pine and Cellulose Ltd.

However, there will probably be a holdup on the southern section as the application of Alaska Pine for a forest management licence in the area concerned was delayed by the calling of the Sloan royal commission on forestry.

The road when completed will be about [illegible] miles.

Three other tenders were called by the department this week.

Lowest acceptable bid for the construction of the Condensary bridge near Courtenay was submitted by Pacific Pile Driving at $[illegible]. A lower tender was submitted but was not in order.

Peter Kiewet and Sons were low bidders for the construction of the Cottonwood bridge in the Cariboo with a tender of $[illegible].

Tender of $[illegible] was the lowest submitted for the Pearson bridge near Cranbrook by Hound Construction Co.

Mary Munn Here To Stay

Famed Pianist Arrives

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Most concert pianists are launched early in life by parents or musically-minded friends who recognize their worth.

[illegible] that turned the trick.

Miss Munn told the story yesterday, shortly after her arrival to take up residence, begin teaching and possibly give some recitals in Victoria.

[illegible]

"They took me to the doctor and he said, 'You'd better have her taught at once'," smiled Miss Munn. "I haven't stopped yet."

Although blind from birth she was able to make [illegible] her Canadian and European debut in recital in 1931. She had a[illegible]

Since then Miss Munn has given recitals and performed with orchestras in seven countries. In recent years she has taught as many as 67 pupils each week at Mt. Royal College in Calgary.

[illegible]

Her total of concerts "probably goes into the thousands" but Miss Munn remembers best her debut in Montreal, a concert with the London Symphony orchestra and her first appearance in a country where no English was spoken.

[illegible]

When she is at home Miss Munn plays all kinds of music. She makes sure to end with [illegible] comedy "or [illegible] Margaret (Miss Margaret Ryan, her companion) knows it's time to eat."

Saturday Brunch Becoming Popular Way To Entertain

FRANCES THOMPSON

Not so very many years ago [illegible]

[illegible] modern but it seems both have come to stay. In my invaluable dictionary of accepted slang words "brunch" is defined as a meal eaten between breakfast time and noon, a combination breakfast and lunch. You and I know that, of course, but have you ever thought [illegible] for informal entertaining?

Now that most people have a five-day work week, Saturday brunch is becoming almost as popular a meal as a buffet supper, at least in homes where there are no young children to be fed at the orthodox breakfast hour. You notice I make no mention of such a meal on a Sunday for how and when you eat on that day is a very personal matter so let your conscience be your guide.

Anyway, brunch gives endless scope for the imagination but here are a couple of suggested menus which always seem to make a hit . . .

Menu 1. Tomato juice, pancakes (or waffles) served with crisp bacon, sausages and maple syrup, tea or coffee.

Menu 2. Broiled grapefruit halves, Eggs Benedict (recipe follows), toast, marmalade and coffee. There's a reason for planning brunch along such lines as these. [illegible] these can still be well balanced.

There are a few pointers on the [illegible] more interesting if spiced with a few drops of Worcester sauce and a squeeze of lemon juice. Sausages will broil or fry to perfection if you first prick them well, then cover with boiling water. Let them stand for just a few minutes then drain off the boiling water [illegible] paper in a low temperature oven or warming oven to crispen.

BROILED GRAPEFRUIT

Cut in halves, remove seeds, and with a grapefruit knife [illegible] each section on [illegible] dividing walls and don't touch the centre. This method means each section is easily and neatly removed with the spoon and no squirting of juice at the table is possible! Sprinkle each grapefruit half with sugar or [illegible] each half and put them on a very hot broiler 2 inches away from heat. Leave oven door open and broil until edges of the skin just begin to brown. Serve piping hot as a novelty.

EGGS BENEDICT

The original recipe calls for English muffins which we used to call "sudden death" or was that term applied to crumpets? Split in halves and toast [illegible] Cover each with a thin slice of cooked ham, cut to fit, and if possible broil for a few minutes to heat.

Place a poached egg on top of each and serve with Hollandaise sauce. [illegible] suggested muffins. P.S. Any recipe book will give you a recipe for Hollandaise sauce since our [illegible] space does not permit it. A quick imitation can be made by heating some ready-made mayonnaise in top of double boiler and diluting it to the required consistency with milk or light cream.

TRICK OF THE DAY

THE WELL-DRESSED LEG—The smart leg this fall will wear stockings that reflect costume [illegible]. Not just any beige, brown or grey, but stockings with iridescent tones picking up and accenting dress shades.

The smart leg also will wear a stocking that fits—but perfectly. Slim skirts make it a must; proportioned sizes are what make it possible. For stockings sized to the leg neither bag, bunch, twist or snap garters. Of course, these miracles only come to pass when you get the right size. To do it, tell your salesgirl your exact height, leg girth and girdle length. Her charts automatically gauge your size.

Dozen Cooks . . . . . . In Test Kitchen

Boost Canadian Farm Products

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—In Canada's kitchen more than a dozen women virtually have a finger in every pie.

These [illegible] experts include 11 home economists and three technicians working here in the consumer section of the department of agriculture where a busy test kitchen and offices prompt the title Canada's Kitchen.

Established in 1939 and placed within the department's marketing service division, the kitchen is a link between producer and consumer. It keeps an eye on all agricultural commodities to provide information on anything from meat grading to apple jelly.

AIDS HOMEMAKERS

Home economist Laura Pepper, chief of the consumer section, says the section's main purpose is to help homemakers buy and use Canadian agricultural products wisely.

Changing shopping methods in large self-service supermarkets, new and different food products and changing consumer tastes and demands keep the section's experts busy.

"Food habits are changing so fast [illegible] to keep up with the times," said Miss Pepper. [illegible] attractive foods, purchased at retail prices.

EXPERTS AND NIBBLERS

In the test kitchen new recipes for preparing and serving food are continually being taste-tested by expert [illegible] and sometimes by [illegible] to determine consumer acceptance of the dish.

As an amateur taste tester, this [illegible] sampled broiler turkey roasted with barbecue sauce [illegible]

But from the panel of taste-testing experts — who have been sampling broiler turkey prepared various ways for weeks — these [illegible] which would perturb the most [illegible] chef.

TV Talk

By ROY PARKETT

Hope, B.C., will get a chair lift up nearby Dog Mountain free because of television. The aerial tramway is to [illegible] to provide access to the summit for radio engineers and construction crews working on Canada's trans-continental micro-wave system.

British Columbia's section of the microwave network is really up in the [illegible] of the 13 sites in this province [illegible] to be located on mountain tops.

When completed to Vancouver in 1958 the microwave hook-up will carry TV programs both ways between all major Canadian cities. Victoria will be connected to the network by a TV link [illegible] telephone company offices here and in Vancouver which will be completed by the end of this year.

* * *

"We've seen this re-run. I remember the commercial."

A PEEPING TOM— Somewhat reluctantly, a Canadian department store agreed to a demonstration of industrial TV in the role of store detective. It proved more successful than expected in the tests.

A shoplifter was caught red-handed after all of the store's managers watched the performance on TV from the monitor [illegible] several floors above, convincing them of the merit of the idea.

* * *

It is the White Sox and the Indians in action on channels 11 and 12 at 11.25 this morning.

The national tennis singles will be seen on channel 4 from New York at 12.30 p.m.

The Vancouver Mounties are hosts to the Los Angeles Angels on channel 2 at 1.30 this afternoon.

[illegible] who pits his skill against [illegible] and waterfront [illegible] as "Killer Shark" [illegible]

All the glamor which goes with the choosing of "Miss America" will be seen on channel 5 at 7.30 p.m.

[illegible] is a top variety program [illegible]

Still running away with the Saturday night ratings is Lawrence Welk's hour of music and song on channel 5 at 9.

New comedy show with a Scottish accent is "Hey Jeannie," which makes its debut on channels 11 and 12 at 9.30.

Irene Dunne stars in the channel 4 drama, "Sheila," on Festival of Stars at 9.30.

"Doug [illegible]" is the title of the comedy movie slated for channel 2 at 10.30.

Tender story in two parts is the Claudette Colbert movie, "Since You Went Away," beginning on channel 5 at 10.30.

The popular Saturday feature, "Your Hit Parade," [illegible] channel 4 [illegible] at 10.30.

Channel 12 offers "One Sunday Afternoon," a Dennis Morgan-Janis Page movie at 10.15.

[illegible] channel 5 is "Women on the [illegible]," a [illegible] movie with plenty of suspense featuring [illegible]

DRIVE WITH CARE

CHILDREN AHEAD

STOP

MAKE SAFE DRIVING YOUR RULE

[illegible] and make your motto: Caution should be seen [illegible] See [illegible] that when children are school-bound they are not accident-bound. Proceed with caution . . . drive safely.

STOP

GIVE CHILDREN THE RIGHT OF WAY

It is the right way to drive. Little folks may sometimes be forgetful of safety rules [illegible] is up to you to remember at all times.

TAKE CARE AS YOU GO—

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—Relax and enjoy yourself as much as possible in the afternoon and evening. Be tactful, economical in the morning.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—Don't alter things in the morning; be cheery, optimistic; make progress in the afternoon and in the evening.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Be co-operative; express yourself more freely in the afternoon and evening. Postpone revisions; be cautious in the morning.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Morning: recheck financial transactions; be economical. Improve your pecuniary standing in the afternoon and evening.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Make the most of your personality, charm in the afternoon and evening. Be tactful in dealings in the morning.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra)—Get things done in the afternoon and evening; seek, offer help. Don't let others in on your decisions in the morning.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio)—Cement standing with others in the afternoon and evening. Avoid entering into anything that could prove costly in the morning.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)—Work items and service can be forwarded gainfully in the afternoon and evening. Be diplomatic with higher-ups in the morning.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Be realistic, practical. Accept revisions in arrangements as opportunities to bulwark weaknesses.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius)—Morning: avoid proposals that drain resources, joint money. Wind things up confidently in the afternoon and evening.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces)—Be self-reliant; don't expect co-operation in the morning. There is much to be done in the afternoon and evening; keep busy.

Planning ahead: Good for sociability, entertaining, etc.: Sept. 8, 12, 14.

Vocational Training Useless in Few Years

Practical Training Wasted?

It is startlingly clear, an educator said in Victoria yesterday, that in a few years much of the present "specific practical education, 'vocational training' if you like, will be virtually useless."

Dr. Ranton McIntosh, director of secondary teacher education at University of B.C., was one of three speakers on human resources at the annual conference of The Institute of Public Administration of Canada.

Victoria sessions ended at noon, and the conference moved on to Vancouver, where it will continue through today.

Most of today's machines and the techniques of their manufacture and operation will be obsolete in a few years, Dr. McIntosh said.

"Why spend time teaching drill-press skills when no one is going to be operating a drill-press?"

A large glass company, he said, has 14 machines operated by one man turning out 90 per cent of the light bulbs in the United States.

"Why have children learn to grind valves, bore cylinders and repair carburetors when the automobile of tomorrow won't have valves, cylinders or a carburetor?"

[illegible] Dr. McIntosh said, should be to provide young people with thorough training in principles which, unlikely to change themselves, will provide the basis for change.

UNCHANGEABLE LAWS

"There are many changeless things the embryo mechanic will have to know — the laws of mechanics won't change" he said.

This he added, implied a renewed emphasis on theory in high schools—"in this rapidly changing world, theory becomes the most important of all training."

Dr. McIntosh asserted that "of all our resources, we have been most improvident with our gifted children."

He suggested that there should be a systematic talent search throughout the schools, provision for quicker advancement of bright students, more freedom to read and investigate, and assurance that the educational careers of gifted students would never be "interrupted or halted" for lack of funds.

Far too little is spent on improving the use of manpower resources, compared with the billions of dollars spent on improving use of physical resources, J. P. Francis of Ottawa said.

Mr. Francis is assistant chief of the manpower division, in the federal labor department.

A major limitation on the rate of Canada's economic advance, he indicated, is the availability of skilled manpower, and the efficiency of its utilization.

He made an observation similar to Dr. McIntosh's:

"If career choices and training are not appropriate to the ways industry is changing, the waste of manpower could well be staggering."

Mr. Francis advocated more effective career counselling, and, to gain maximum manpower advantage from Canada's growing proportion of over-65s, the use of retirement counsellors.

SCHOOLS LACKING

Dr. William A. Plenderleith, co-ordinator of services in the B.C. education department, spoke on the future of Canadian Indians and Eskimos, but in the course of his address expressed the opinion that the schools are not doing all they can in training children in citizenship.

Children are told about the duties of the lieutenant-governor and the policeman, he said, but aren't trained to use their citizenship knowledge.

There is too much segregation of Indians still in Canadian education, Dr. Plenderleith said. British Columbia is exceptional in that of 7,600 Indian children in various B.C. schools, 1,860 attend with white children. In the rest of Canada, only 1,800 do so.

Destructive Thieves Loot Store

Thieves bent on destruction stole more than $100 worth of goods overnight yesterday from Shearing Food Market, 810 Catherine and turned the store into a shambles.

They entered by smashing a window out of the front door, police said, and stole a few cigaret lighters and wallets, $30 worth of fresh and frozen meats and 24 cartons of cigarets, worth $75.

"The culprits pulled merchandise off the shelves and made a general shambles of the store," police said.

BIG TIDES

The Bay of Fundy between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick is noted for its tides, which rise to a height of 70 feet.

Starring Alec Guiness, Cecil Parker, Herbert Lom, Peter Sellers, Danny Green and Katie Johnson
This, in our opinion, is the comedy gem of the year. Those of our patrons who remember Guiness in "Kind Hearts and Coronets," "The Lavender Hill Mob," etc. will know that he is the master of the subtle comedy twist which keep you laughing weeks and months after the show. "The Ladykillers" is the hilarious story of a nap hand of crooks whose carefully laid plans are trumped by the implacable charm and quiet dignity of a "dear little pixilated old lady," played by Katie Johnson—who just about steals the whole picture herself. Don't let anything stop you from seeing this.
